The vessels that come under operation of the Admiral-Oriental Line are the Presidents McKinley, Jackson, Grant, Jefferson and Madison, all passenger liners, and the freighters Edgmore, Eldridge, Ponoma and Wheatland Montana.

Mr. H. F. Alexander of Seattle, President of the Admiral Line, is to remain at the head of the Pacific Steamship Company which operates a large fleet of steamers on the Pacific coast.

It is understood here that the change in management of the shipping board steamers affected is to take place at once.

A Romantic Trek From The Land of The Midnight Sun Through The Heart Of Asia, The Fantastic Land of Mongolia, And Mysterious Thibet To Shanghai.

VII—MONGOLIA'S GLORIES AND DEPTHS

By Larry Lehrbas

When the calvacade of Russian students rode out of Kosh Agatch—"Goodbye, Trees"—on new, fresh ponies, and down into the plains of Mongolia they rode into a land of mystery, black magic, strange people, strange customs. Few white men have traveled over some of its unmapped reaches and most of what is known of the great plains fringed by mountains that pierce the very skies with snowcapped peaks has been given to the world by a scattering handful of travelers imbued with the wanderlust, or military and diplomatic expeditions attempting to solve the political riddle of that once great empire now sunk to a priest-ridden bondage.

From Kosh Agatch and its church, two stores and scattering of yurts, including the residence of the veterinary surgeon in charge of the remount station the horsemen crossed the frontier into Mongolia over a bleak mountain pass and then down the hilly trail to the shore of Lake Achitnor.

Now they were in the country of the Khans, once the seat of Ghenghiz Khan and the mightiest empire ever forged by man—now a conglomeration of nomad tribes ruled by lamas over which the Republic of China claims overlordship. In the plains ahead laid the dreams of old glories, the picturesqueness of the Cowherd Empire when Ghanghiz rode over the open spaces with jogging yak-tail banners floating in the breeze. Mongolia in the old days was a name to conjure with, for it meant the nomad tribes under the invincible and Unconquerable Khan's leadership that were making history when Rome was still the capital of the civilised world.

FORGOTTEN GLORIES

On their trek through Mongolia, however, the horsemen found few Mongols who had even an inkling of their past greatness. The great-grandsons of the race of shepherd-warriors came to their camp by night and talked of the grass on the range, the fatness of the sheep, the speed of their horses, but naught of ancient glories. The name of Genghiz Khan was reverenced, they found, more as a hero of mythical strength and horsemanship, a shepherd's god.

The Mongolians of today had degenerated into a tattered, dirty and shiftless race of horsemen hoboes, unable, despite the decadent China of today, to break away from China's rule. Under the Manchus the Mongols paid tribute to the Dragon Throne at Peking, after Chinese armies had invaded Thibet and caused even the all-powerful Dalai Lama to bow before the Yellow Emperor's name and standards. Then China had invaded Mongolia—by peaceful penetration—until Chinese traders actually controlled Mongolia and sucked the country dry of its wealth. It was about this time that Russia blocked China's endeavors in Mongolia and attempted to form a buffer state between the two great empires.

Then came the Revolution in China and the dethronement of the Manchus. The Chinese were expelled from Thibet, and the Mongolians, egged on by the Russians, seized their opportunity to declare that they owed allegiance to the Manchus, but not to any 'President'. China immediately marched an army against the Mongolians but was unable to make any headway and the Hu-tuk-htu, the Living Buddha who ruled the religious world of Mongolia from Urga,

FOUR MILLIONS NEEDED TO AID FLOOD VICTIMS

Appeal Made Here For Funds To Help Chekiang Sufferers

Four million dollars is needed to cope with the need for relief in the flood swept regions of Chekiang, according to the findings of investigation work conducted by the Chinese Foreign Famine Relief Committee, and announcement to this effect has just been made.

To secure this sum campaigns are to be opened in various of the larger cities of North China and Shanghai will be the scene of efforts in this line.

The extreme need in the devastated areas is told in the following announcement issued by Mr. W. E. Souter, secretary of the Committee here:

"At a special meeting held last night our Governing Board considered reports from our two committees at Ningpo and Hangchow. The whole affected arta has been investigated except Wenchow, Taichow and Kinhwa districts.

"We have already allocated $200,000 to the Chekiang flood sufferers through the International Committees at Hangchow and Ningpo and have not made any public pronouncement of appeal until we had more reliable investigations as to the real need. However with the information now before us we decided that the famine distress was so great and widespread that four million dollars is required to in any adequate manner tackle this relief work.

"Our Peking Central Executive is arranging for a campaign for funds in Peking, Tientsin, Tsinan, Kaifeng and other centers and we in Shanghai have formed a sub-committee to raise funds here.

"During the famine in the North and in the recent flood and famine in the Hwai region of Anhwei and Kiangsu the people of Chekiang and the South contributed liberally to the famine funds and that at a time when conditions were none too good in Chekiang; indeed without the help of Chekiang and the South, I am sure, thousands would have died.

"The present conditions are extremely bad, as reports from missionaries and merchants amply show; but 3 or 4 months from now—during the Winter months—there will be a large death-roll unless the charitably inclined come to the rescue; and in this connection it is praiseworthy that the various Guilds are contributing well to the relief funds.

"I know full well that the public is weary of famine, appeals; and we who have given much time and strength to this work, are even more tired of the exacting labor involved. Yet we cannot but respond to this further call and let the public know the conditions. If further details are required I shall be glad to give any information. Contributions should be sent to us at 3 Hankow Road, Bank of China Building."

The Evening Star Is One Year Old Today

The Evening Star, Shanghai's leading evening newspaper, is one year old today, and in commemoration of that event today's issue of the Star will be a special number, with twelve or fourteen pages instead of the usual eight or ten.

In the one year of its existence the Star has maintained the big lead in circulation over its evening contemporaries which it won at the start, and today has more than twice the combined circulation of the rival journals in its field.

The Star is the only real evening newspaper in the Far East, with better and more complete news facilities, local and telegraph, and better features than any other paper in its field in this part of the world.

In view of the fact that until the advent of the Star Shanghai always was regarded as a "morning paper" city, due to the complete absence of any evening papers worthy of the name, the progress of the Star in the one year of its existence has been remarkable.

Watch for today's special issue. It will be on the streets at 4:30 o'clock.

German Savant Comes To Lecture To Chinese; Tendered Banquet Here

Dr. Hans Driesch, Of Leipzig, To Give Philosophy Courses; Says Rathenau Is Held National Martyr

"The study of modern systems of philosophical thought and teachings will prove of great assistance to Chinese students in the solution of present day problems," said Dr. Hans Driesch Sunday in discussing a course of lectures he intends delivering at the National University at Peking. Dr. Driesch comes direct from Leipzig University at the invitation of the Chinese government to expound the latest approved systems of philosophy, logic and ethics; and both through his erudite writings and lectures he has attained an international reputation. He follows John Dewey and Bertrand Russell. His latest work entitled the Science and Philosophy of "Organism" created much discussion in the European capitals of learning, since he dealt with subjects of vitalism, life force and the phenomenon of being, in an entirely new and different fashion.

Dr. Driesch is a small man, rather ruddy complexioned with a short beard, whose deep set blue eyes attest to his great and profound interest in his quest in the realm of the mind. He speaks quite modestly of his achievements and is interested in all manner of human events.

He stated that his future plans were not yet decided inasmuch as he had been asked to spend part of the semester at Nanking before proceeding to China's capital. Dr. Driesch believes however that since his lectures are all so closely interrelated it will be difficult to divide them without marring the continuity of thought.

"My first course will be by way of introduction," he said. "It is a history of European Philosophy and will trace the earliest beginnings of the subject up to the present day. In it I shall endeavor to show how the different actions of the European nations were motivated through mental influence. I shall dwell to some extent upon the great leaders of thought and the roles they played in their separate countries' development.

Correlating with the above lectures will be a course expounding the various Systems of Philosophy including an examination of logic, ethics, and metaphysics which leads naturally into the third and more advanced stage when I shall talk on Mind and Body and their dependence one upon the other.

"My final lectures will dwell upon the Philosophy of Organism which includes a survey of the most recent discoveries and theories relative to the Spirit, Being, Vitalism and Reality of Existance."

INTERESTED IN CHINA

When asked his views on the ancient Chinese Philosophy Dr. Driesch said:

"The teachings of Mencius, Lao-tsze, Confucius and others of the same cycle are tremendously interesting. I have made quite a comprehensive study of the theories expounded by the ancient Chinese, but unfortunately the philosophers of old only lead up to a certain point and then stopped. Their teachings left unanswered many questions of their students relative to both materialistic and extraorganisms. It is interesting to note however in that connection what a part religion played in ancient philosophy. Quite the opposite occurred in Europe.

"In China, even in the present, one may belong to both the Buddist and Taoist religions, accepting a modicum of enlightenment from each, whereas in Europe there is continual controversy over the various schools, doctrines, and methods which quite lead to confusion in the mind of the student. In China the Intelligentsia do not quarrel over systems but accept that which meets their needs."

He believes that great strides along the lines of modern thought may be accomplished by Chinese because they approach the subject with an open mind.

Dr. Driesch then told about the remarkable strides made by various universities since the war. The students, particularly in Germany, are adopting a new interest in the solution of original problems, he said.

STRENGTHENED REPUBLIC

The German savant left Leipzig on September 5 and sailed from Marseilles five days later. He is an ardent republican and gave an interesting account of the effect of Rathenau's assassination had on the German republic.

"The murder of Rathenau had the effect of unifying the republic as nothing else could have," he said. "Instead of creating dissention or unrest, the people consider that Rathenau was a martyr to the cause of democracy

CONSULAR COURT OPENS HEARING OF S. M. C. SUIT

Dennis McDermott, Plaintiff, Asks Tls. 15,000 For Alleged Illegal Arrest

Contentions upon which Mr. Dennis McDermott is claiming damages from the Municipal Council in the sum of Tls. 15,000 were set forth yesterday in testimony given by the plaintiff and by his brother, Mr. Terrence McDermott, at the opening hearing of the case before the Court of Consuls, over which Mr. E. S. Cunningham, American Consul-General and President of the Consular Court, presided. It is the first hearing that this international tribunal has held in a space of four years. The members of the Consular Body who are conducting the case and who sat yesterday were Mr. Cunningham; Mr. Sydney Barton, British Consul-General; and Mr. N. Aall, Norweigan Consul-General.

As basis for the action Mr. McDermott alleges that he was illegally arrested and detained in a cell at the Hongkew police station on July 21 last and circumstances in connection with this incident were related in detail yesterday by the two witnesses who testified. Mr. McDermott is represented in the case by Mr. J. G. Priestwood and Mr. H. Langley Smith is appearing on behalf of the Municipal Council.

According to the testimony of the plaintiff, he has been employed for the past year and a half as a coal checker at the Riverside plant of the Municipal Electricity Department. He said it was on the fourth day of a leave of a month that had been granted to him that three officers came to his house at 894 Hanbury Road. He was lying down at the time, he said, and the three officers ordered him to dress and accompany them. Under questioning it was brought out that no warrant of arrest was produced.

Official records show that Mr. McDermott was brought to Hongkew station by Detective Sergt. R. J. Schmidt of Hongkew station; Mr. W. H. Hearne, Assistant Clerk of the British Court and Mr. Abbey, an official in the office of the Registrar of the Court.

Examination of the witnesses disclosed that on the day before Mr. McDermott was arrested his wife had lodged a complaint against him, saying her husband while under the influence of liquor had beaten and kicked her and she asked the authorities to give her shelter as she feared to return home.

Mr. McDermott said that when he was asked to accompany the officers from his home he was told by Mr. Hearne and Mr. Abbey that he was to go with them to Mr. G. W. King, British Magistrate. The automobile in which they departed, however, went to Hongkew police station and after being searched there he was locked up in a cell. He was permitted to communicate with his brother Mr. Terrence McDermott, sometime after he was locked up and after the brother had made several trips between Hongkew station and Mr. King's residence the prisoner at length was released.

Mr. McDermott on cross-examination yesterday admitted that on the day before his arrest he had quarrelled with his wife and he admitted also that he had struck her, but he denied her charge that he had kicked her.

Mr. Terrence McDermott in testifying said that when he went to see Mr. King while trying to effect his brother's release the British Magistrate had said that no warrant had been issued in the case.

The hearing is to be resumed before the same tribunal at 2:30 o'clock on the afternoon of October 23.

LLOYD GEORGE CAUSTIC IN ASSAILING OPPONENTS OF NEAR EAST POLICIES

Points To Three Objects He Strove To Achieve In Turkey As Vital To British Prestige; Scores Predecessors For Failures

REBUKES ASQUITH FAILURES IN 1914

Hints That Firmer, More Direct Methods Might Have Prevented Great War; Makes References To French And Italian Defections

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 14.—On arriving at Macclesfield yesterday evening on the eve of his speech at Manchester, Mr. Lloyd George received an ovation from thousands. From Macclesfield the Premier motored, cheered by hundreds of people waving flags in the villages to Mobberley Hall where he was the guest.

Today Mr. Lloyd George made a triumphant progress through nine towns to Manchester from Mobberley Hall, travelling in an open car with his wife and his host and hostess, along sunlit roads. He was greeted with cheers throughout his journey.

The Premier reached Manchester as businessmen were going home for lunch. The Premier, whose face was a wreath of smiles, while acknowledging the hearty greetings, for a moment forgot the cheering multitude as he passed the John Bright statue, to whom he raised his hat. He also stopped enroute to visit Mr. William Royle, a former political friend and now the leader of the Manchester Independent Liberals, who has just been operated upon in a nursing home.

The vicinity of the Reform Club, where Sir Edward Rhodes, the President of the Coalition Liberals of Manchester presided at the luncheon, was packed with masses of people behind barricades.

Standing on the steps of the Club, Mr. Lloyd George waved his hat in acknowledgement of the cheers. Responding to cries of "Speech!", the Premier said:

"I thank you for this great gathering, for greeting me to this city to put the case for the Government in the efforts they have made to establish European peace and to prevent bloodshed from spreading to Eastern Europe."

RENEWED CHEERS

There were renewed cheers as Mr. Lloyd George entered the Club where Mrs. Lloyd George was presented with a handsome bouquet.

The Chairman, toasting the Premier, mentioned that there had been 7,000 applications for 800 seats.

Mr. Lloyd George, responding amidst an ovation, said:

"Since I have come to the north of England I have not witnessed those symptoms of universal indignation and execration, with which the Government and its policy are supposed to be regarded. The fact that over twenty-five times as many people sought admission to this room as it can contain, the fact that very great crowds have met me at every stage of my journey might simply be regarded as expressions of the interest which the notorious offender always creates.

"Had it not been for the fact that, wherever they were, they received me with cordiality, warmth and enthusiasm such as I never experienced, I thank them. The people of this country do not believe that the Government deliberately endeavour to rush the country into war.

"On the contrary they repudiate that infamous charge as an outrage on British fairplay. We have ensured peace. We have not been warmongers. We have been peacemakers. We took the only sure road to peace and we have reached it.

"It has been largely due to the tact, judgment and resolution of our representative at Constantinople, Sir Charles Harington, and our sagacious advisor, Sir Horace Rumbold, and it has also been largely attributable to the patience and zeal of Lord Curzon but, as Sir Charles Harington has said, and it is no derogation to either of them, it would have been impossible, had it not been that resolution and firmness were displayed in sending support to Sir Charles Harington which impressed the Oriental mind.

DELICATE NEGOTIATIONS

"The negotiations were delicate and difficult and dangerous as they were and have been conducted under circumstances which fortunately were without precedent in this country. Whilst we were engaged in this most difficult task, we have been assailed with misrepresentation, with abuse and with innuendo such as no Government in conducting international affairs has ever been subjected to before and the country resents it.

"At the time we could not answer the charge. We had to lie quiet while it was suggested that we were war mongers, that we were thirsting for blood (for the reason that you cannot place the whole circumstances before the country without interfering with the work of our representatives on the spot). But the time has come when I am enabled to speak and I mean to do so.

"There is a writer in the press, who has made himself very notori-

SIR KEITH SMITH, NOTED AVIATOR, HERE ON VISIT

Australian Flight Hero Looks Over Land For World Air Trip

Shanghai welcomed another distinguished visitor yesterday when Sir Keith Smith, K.B.E., brother of the late Sir Ross Smith and participant in the famous England to Australia airplane flight of 1919, arrived by the steamer President Taft to conduct investigations in connection with a possible world flying trip.

Sir Keith will confer while here with experts in regard to harbor landings which might be used in the world flight, which is expected to take in Shanghai and Peking after visits in the Southern coast ports and then to proceed Eastward over Japan. The young aviator, he is barely 32, is greatly interested in the possibilities of commercial air transport and sees no serious obstacle to the institution of such a service between Hongkong and Shanghai and other China Coast ports, as well as connecting other points in the East and Orient. He is particularly interested in a scheme for the establishment of a commercial air service between England and Australia and states that the formation of a company has been proposed.

Sir Keith Smith was born in Adelaide, Australia. When the war broke out he was rejected for active service in Australia but went to England and joined the Royal Flying Corps and served as a pilot and flying instructor until the close of hostilities. He was mentioned in despatches and was knighted following the successful Australian flight in 1919.

Yak-Trail Trails

THE BEAR'S PAW

Later Mongolia and Russia signed a treaty recognising certain Russian rights in Mongolia and Mongolia, in turn, came under the protection of Russia. Chaos in Russia again upset the political slate, however, and the Mongolians appealed to China to save them from a threatened invasion by the Cossacks of Semenoff. It was China's opportunity to regain control of Mongolia and today Mongolia is, nominally at least, ruled by the Bureau for Mongolia and Tibetan Affairs.

Outer Mongolia, the vast stretches over which Serge and his two companions rode, is ruled today by Chinese Ambams at Kobdo, Urga and Kokonor, and Military Governors at Uliassutai and Ili in Turkestan. Only a few days ago the news agencies carried stories from Peking that the Ambams were to be reinstated in Mongolia, assuring the 211 tribes, or banners, in Mongolia that they—the grandsons of the barbarian hordes who swept over both Europe and Asia and whose forefathers had played Mongolian quoits about the Dragon Throne—were to be henceforth ruled by a president wearing a frock-coat.

THE GREEN CART

From the wild, conquering nomads they were in olden times with their proud yak-tail banners they had become the residue of a yoked people. Once their leaders rode to the Forbidden Palace and tied their mounts to sacred pagodas. Only a short time ago an official Presidential order relating to Mongolia said "as Dassak Da Lama (the Great Lama) has been loyal to the Republic he is hereby permitted to ride on a Green Cart and use Yellow reins, as encouragement!" Who wouldn't trek over the vast expanses of Mongolia to see a nice fat lama ambling along on top of a green cart and proudly holding yellow reins in his hands!

Jogging along in easy stages the calvacade soon came to the Kobdo river and past the lamastery of Chal Lama, a sulking lama who had risen to power by devious paths and ruled the country about Ujam Mungip with iron hand. The long ride was without incident except for some fine juicy antelope killed by several members of the party on the plains near Turuit, a spot on the map that actually consists of a scattering collection of yurts, until they climbed the rim of mountains encircling Kobdo and entered that dreary outpost on the desert—about 500 miles from Biisk.

Kobdo is the jumping-off place. It lies at the bottom of the Altai foot-hills on the doorstep of the desert, and is peopled by a few hundred children of the desert, Chinese traders and a handful of officials. Containing a few dozen trees it is an oasis for the weary travelers who come by camel caravan from sandy and rock strewn spaces in the surrounding country. To Serge and his companions it was a drab, dreary waste, but they were to wish for even its doubtful civilisation before they finished the yak-tail trail.

As they rode into Kobdo they met a long caravan of camels with jingling bells starting off for Urga far away—Urga, the seat of Hu-tuk-htu, the Living Buddha, third in the ranks of the Buddhist Tibetan hierarchy, but first in the temporal affairs of all Mongolia. To Urga go the camel caravans of Mongolia with the sheep's pelts, wool, camel's hair of the plains, and the thousands of desert pilgrims to worship near the palace of the Living Buddha in the shadow of the sacred mountain of Bogdinol.

TINKLING CARDVANS

Despite the weariness of the long trail they had ridden Serge and the students in the calvacade were drawn by the irresistible fascination of the camel caravans. They saw their first camels wobbling off into the failing twilight with somewhat the same thrill that the rest of us in younger days saw the camels in the one-ringed circuses that played in the small towns of America, a thrill akin to the 'kick' we got feeding peanuts to the jabbering monkeys.

Kobdo is the center of the camel caravans and has been since it was founded by Chinese traders two centuries ago. Despite the battles that have raged 'round it since, despite the fact that it was sacked by Mongols within the memory of the present generation, and again in 1912, when another Mongol horde such as those that once swept into China itself and were the 'devils' responsible for the erection of the Great Wall as protection against them, Kobdo has plodded along as slow and sure as the camels, the symbol of its existence on the rim of the desert.

Serge and his companions rode into Kobdo light-heartedly and eager for the new sensations in store for them with their first direct touch with the nomad tribe of the desert. Even in the dusk they could see strange costumes.

In the next instalment of the adventures of Serge and his companions on the yak-tail trail, which appears tomorrow, the young students inspect a foreign caravan, prepare for the trek into the desert and attend a brilliant, barbaric pageant given for the visiting Governor of Mongolia. The first drawing by Arcady, whose wonderful pictures are already known to readers of THE CHINA PRESS, will also appear.

Famous Collie Walks Back To Texas

THE uncanny "homing" sense of a dog was never more wonderfully displayed than when Mrs. May Kendrick, of Fort Worth, Tex., on a visit to New York, gave her collie, "Bescoe," to friends. Three days of the city was all the intelligent beast could stand. He ran away and five months later turned up at the Kendrick home in Texas. His hair was matted, his usual plumpness gone, and his feet were sore, for he had walked all the way—and actually found the way.

Russian Ballet Registers Again At The Del Monte

The Russian ballet which has been pleasing capacity crowds at the Del Monte for the past fortnight, scored heavily again with the new program which they began Saturday night.

Miss Talis Bochogova registered further success and others of the big cast—notably Miss Marushta Krasnapolskaya in her cymbal dance, and Helen and Jan Domaratzky—likewise came in for heavy applause and encore calls. There were a number of novelties in the new program and its reception augurs for further big attendance records at the Del Monte this week.

SOLONS PLANNING IMPEACHMENT OF LI YUAN-HUNG

Tsao Kun's Aides Reported Plotting To Remove President

(China Press Service)

Peking, Oct. 16.—Preparations are being made by Pien Shu-ching, Tsao Kun's aide, to impeach President Li Yuan-hung. Over one hundred Parliamentarians have signed the proposed bill. Twenty more will be required before it can be introduced.

The move is part of the scheme to elect Tsao Kun president. The widening of the split between Paotingfu and the Presidential House increases as Tsao's demand for the reorganization of the Cabinet is constantly ignored by Li, who has the support of General Wu Pei-fu. The latter has failed to go to Paotingfu as expected on account of the Fukien situation. A large section of Parliament now plans to eliminate Li by impeaching him so that he will retire like Old Hsu and Tsao Kun may be elected in his place.

The biggest stumbling block aside from popular opposition will be the disapproval from Loyang. General Wu Pei-fu, while suppressing his feelings against the suicidal policy of the Paotingfu warlord to become the national chief executive has adopted a negative mood and is vigorously supporting President Li and his present Cabinet.

Following the rejection of the resignation of the Wang Cabinet en bloc, the members of the high executive body have individually submitted their petition for retirement. Premier Wang Chung-hui was the first to file his request, instructing his gate keeper that from this week, he would receive no guests at his Chaoyangmeng residence, whether on private or public mission.

Lo Wen-ken, Minister of Finance and right-hand man of Premier Wang, has done likewise. It is reported that Wang and Lo will leave for Tientsin today. Other Ministers quitting their jobs are Admiral Li Ting-hsin, of the Navy Department, and Mr. Tang Er-ho, of the Ministry of Education. None of them attended the Cabinet meeting on Saturday. Dr. Wellington Koo has also refused to act as Premier for the time being.

General Chang Yao-tseng, Minister of War, will probably be asked to form a Cabinet on account of his close connection with Paotingfu and Loyang and his popularity among Kuomingtang and other political cliques. Kao Ling-wei, whom Tsao Kun wanted for the Premiership, has definitely declined the nomination.

German Savant Comes To Lecture To Chinese; Tendered Banquet Here

and therefore hold both his memory and teachings sacred."

Dr. Driesch believes that the cause of democracy will best be served in Germany by subdividing many of the states, which is the continuation of the plan that was formulated immediately after the war but which was temporarily dropped owing to strong opposition. With a strong central federal government, he believes the people will reap greater benefits, despite the fact that learning will not have as great a stimulus as at present.

When asked if he believed that the militaristic party will ever gain the upper hand he said that it was doubtful, providing that the people realised the power in their hands given by the ballot. In this connection he told of an interesting militaristic demonstration held recently at the University of Leipzig.

"Memorial services were held for Dr. Rathenau," he said, "to which the entire student body was invited to attend. The ceremonies were impressive and nearly 3,000 of the regular students paid homage to the memory of our former statesman. However the Coroporation students who wear the caps and ribbons and correspond in a measure to your post graduates, created an unfavorable demonstration. It may be inferred then that the militaristic party numbers among its members the so-called "elite" whose prestige carries great weight among the undergraduates. Not only in Leipzig but in other university towns as well, notably Cologne, anti-Rathenau demonstrations were held by Corporation students which created a marked effect."

MORALE GOOD, HE SAYS

Regarding the present economic crisis in Germany Dr. Dreisch said that he was ill-informed and could only base his impressions from personal observations. The morale of the people was for the most part well sustained, there were few idle, and Germany as a whole was endeavoring to work as hard as possible to bring the country back on a pre-war basis. He stated that he did not believe that they would be able to meet the reparations payments in money, owing to the continual fall of the paper mark. He said however that it was quite possible that some arrangement might be effected whereby Germany would be allowed to make the reparations settlements in produce or "goods in kind" which would be acceptable to the Allies.

"At the present time the Socialists are the strongest party in the government. It is well, because in reality they are the unionists and seek for the coalition of Germany rather than exploiting their own selfish ends. Germany's future development rests in their hands, and time alone will show whether the people's confidence has been misplaced, or whether the Socialists will go down in history as the saviors of the nation."

TENDERED BANQUET

Dr. Driesch was the guest of honor at a dinner Sunday night given at the Carlton by five Chinese societies which included The Kiangsu Educational Association, the Southeastern University, the Tung Chi Medical College, the Verein fur Philosophie und Wissenschaft and the Woosung National College.

Dr. Chiang Peh-li, president of the Philosophical Society, acted as toastmaster and delivered a brilliant address of welcome to the noted German savant. Dr. Chiang, who is also a Brigadier General in the Chinese army, having received his military education in Germany, sounded the keynote by stating that once again China and Germany are united in bonds of sympathy and learning which have always formed the closest ties between nations.

Professor P. W. Kuo, president of the Southeastern University traced the great strides made by Chinese Universities in recent years, particularly since the war. He eulogised the former exchange professors, Dr. Bertrand Russell and Dr. John Dewey and said that in the coming of Dr. Driesch a new era of learning in China had been created.

Dr. Chang Ching-mei, president of the National College of Woosung, spoke at length of the great benefits to be derived from the exchange of ideas of the best civilisations of the world. He stated that he hoped that the time was not far distant when Chinese Universities would send exchange professors to Germany to give the best of Chinese thought and culture.

Consul General Thiel of Germany told of his happiness in welcoming a fellow countryman to foreign shores especially since he carried the torch of learning and knowledge. He spoke of the wonderful achievements of Dr. Driesch in the realm of philosophy and original research and stated China was indeed fortunate to have such brilliant exponent of modern doctrines as exchange professor.

Other speakers included Dr. Wilhelm, the famous sinologue, members of the German colony and Jabin Hsu, Chinese advisor to the Municipal Council.

Dr. Driesch modestly answered the encomiums heaped upon him saying that he had already taken China to his heart and anticipated the friendliest relations with Germany's Sister Republic.

Chefoo Observes Country's Birthday

(China Press Correspondence)

Chefoo, Oct. 12.—There was a big procession here on Tuesday. Chefoo remembered the Republican anniversary and celebrated accordingly. Most of the Chinese shops were closed for the day and the schools went out on holiday. Residents of many years' standing say they have never seen such a great procession in Chefoo before. It seemed hours before it passed.

Over fifty local trade guilds took part in the parade while every Chinese school and college was represented, and not by only a few of their students. The student body of Chefoo was very much in evidence in the procession. There was a tremendous firing of crackers and a most awful din while the procession was passing. The firework employees will have plenty to do to make good the crackers which were exploded here to commemorate the anniversary. Surprise was expressed at the huge size of the procession. Chefoo had a big one a year ago. The Chinese turned out then because the Washington Conference was being called and they saw in it a chance of getting their lost territory restored to them. But with no Washington Conference looming on the horizon, they demonstrated on Tuesday their patriotism and sentimentality for their country. The Republican anniversary as remembered and celebrated in this port will soon be to the Chinese people what July 4th is to the populace of the States.

Mr. Sherwood Eddy is due shortly in Chefoo and he is to have several opportunites of addressing the Chinese. A committee has been formed and is working out a program for the visitor. If he fulfills the engagaments mapped out for him, he will not have many idle moments in Chefoo.

Mr. George Sears of Messrs. Cornabe, Eckford and Co., Tsingtau, is at present in Chefoo on business, and Mr. Dowglass, architect and civil engineer has returned and has set up in business for himself. From the amount of building that goes on constantly there ought to be lots for a qualified architect like Mr. Dowglass to do.

There have been no soccer games so far. The weather has been rather warm latterly, but these last two or three days it has been bitterly cold. There is a rumor that the Chefoo Football Club will play the First Team of the C. I. M. Boys' School on Tuesday afternoon and that Mr. Towlson of Cornabe, Eckford and Co. will umpire the match.

The port is lonely now that the warships and destroyers have left. The Navy Y. did a fine work this Summer and as there is every chance of the ships returning, the residents hope Secretary Paul Brown and his helpers will honor chefoo with their presence again next year.

Principals In Latest Movie Killing

ALLEGING that 'Jack' Bergen, movie actor, who doubled in dare-devil roles for famous screen actors, had attacked his wife, George Kline, location director for the Fox Film Co., called Bergen to his home in Edgewater, N. J., and shot him to death. Kline told several versions of the killing, including one of a pistol duel to be fought in the dark. He is held for murder in the first degree. Mrs. Kline was detained temporarily, but released. She and her two brothers saw the shooting. "He died as he had lived!" declared Mrs. May Cribbin Bergen, wife of the dead man, whom he deserted years before, with her little daughter, Margaret.

Sunday's Concert

The first concert program of this season being dedicated to English composers, last Sunday the concert was entirely devoted to works of the French composer Saint Saens.

It may be discussed whether it is recommendable to give programs in the same style or rather to give different music suitable to everybody's taste; anyway it shows the conductor's efforts to give music of high class and the large audience proved to be satisfied with the choice.

The soloist of the afternoon was Mr. Foa, the leader of the violinists, and as we all know a real artist. The most charming part of his renderings were the solo in prelude of "Le Deluge" and the Andantino of the violin concert, but in the other parts of this complicated work he showed as well his musical and technical qualities.

Saint Saens, who died about one year ago, was a great master of composition and had an incomparable talent for orchestration, but his ideas and inspirations are, though full of melody, not always from high order; still he has written enough fine music to procure him an unique position among the French composers.

The rendering of his works and especially the Suite Algerienne under the inspiring and never failing leading of Maestro Paci gave much satisfaction and it may be noticed that the musicians play this music with great ambition and inspiration. Sunday afternoon the orchestra showed again so many good qualities that the hearers could thoroughly enjoy the music and those absent are strongly recommended to hear the same concert this evening.

It should be mentioned, though his name was not mentioned on the program, that Mr. Brunelli played "Le Cygne" with lovely expression and tone.

FOR REMOVING SUPERFLUOUS HAIR

No woman who has any sense of beauty will deny that superfluous hair is one of the greatest drawbacks to good looks.

Realising this, women of all times have put themselves to any expense, and have endured considerable pain and discomfort in order to rid themselves of this great disfigurement.

Nowadays electrolysis is a prevalent "cure" for this evil, but in reality this process involves a great deal of unnecessary expense, waste of time and pain.

The simplest quickest, and most effective treatment can easily be carried out by any sufferer, in the privacy of her home. This is the recipe:

Procure about 1 oz. powdered pheminol from your chemist; mix a sufficient quantity with a few drops of water into a stiff paste. Apply this carefully and thoroughly to the hair you wish to remove and allow the paste to dry. In a few minutes it can be gently scraped away. The skin is left absolutely free from hair, and should then be carefully washed in warm water, and if desired, lightly dusted with a little talcum powder. (Advt.)

1,600 OF TUCHUN LI'S STRAGGLERS ARE COMING HERE

Ousted Official's Family In City, In New $200,000 Home

One thousand and six hundred stragglers formerly under ex-Tuchun Li Hou-chi of Fukien are due to arrive in Shanghai tomorrow on the steamer Kien Chong from Makiang. They will be sent to Pukow for disbandment, according to a private telegram received by a firm here Sunday. Five thousand more are still kept in Mamoi waiting for transportation.

Serious looting and burning by Li's troops were reported in the vicinity of Shuikow, following its fall and in the Southeastern part of Foochow before Li escaped. But strict order is being observed since the entry of the troops of General Hsu Chung-chi, it is declared.

The local Chinese press reports that members of Li Hou-chi's family arrived on the China Merchants' steamer Haiyen Saturday and are now staying at a palatial house in Chu Mu Ti, Nantao, which they have purchased at a cost of more than $200,000. It is estimated the private property of Li amounts to $15,000,000.

(China Press Service)

Peking, Oct. 16.—Wiring from Mamoi, Fukin, on Saturday, Tuchun Li Hou-chi informed the Peking Government that outlaws broke into Foochow, the seat of his government, by bribing his own bodyguards. He says that he will gather up his own men to make a desperate stand in Mamoi and requests that reinforcements be sent to him immediately.

A Presidential Mandate under date of October 14 abolished the Tuchunate of Fukien and appointed Admiral Sah Chen-ping Director of Rehabilitation of Fukien Military Affairs.

The Fukien residents in Peking have telegraphically urged Admiral Sah Chen-ping to assume his new office immediately and have also petitioned the President not to send Admiral Tu Shih-kwei down to Fukien in order to avoid complications.

(Eastern News Agency)

Foochow, October 15.—The majority of the troops under the command of General Li Hou-chi have been disbanded and transported to Mamoi under the protection of the Chinese Fleet. Rumor has it that Tang Kuo-mo, Commander of the 10th Mixed Brigade, has surrendered to Wang Yung-chuan in the district of Suikow.

Foochow, October 15.—General Hsu Chung-chi is expected to enter here this afternoon. Now that order is being gradually restored the public mind is now somewhat easier. Five representatives of the citizens of Foochow are now in course of negotiations with the new military authorities regarding the question of Civil Governorship of the province.

The political situation in Fukien has become more complicated than ever. It is now generally observed that its chaotic aspect will considerably affect the general situation in China.

Y. W. C. A. DRIVE FOR BUDGET FUND SHOWS RESULTS

Workers Report $2,000 Secured At Rally Yesterday

Though the rain interfered to a considerable extent with the attendance there was an enthusiastic rally of Y.W.C.A. workers yesterday afternoon to report on their progress in the Association drive for $16,000 to cover the budget for the coming year.

The fifteen teams of campaigners and their leaders are working as crews of "ships" and their "skippers" and the voyagers reported yesterday a total of $2,009.60 as thus far secured as financial cargo. This, however, does not represent all the contributions secured, the rain having prevented a full attendance.

The workers are satisfied that the drive is going very well and are confident that by the time the campaign closes, on October 26, the goal set will have been reached. The next rally of workers will be held at 11A Quinsan Road Thursday afternoon, when a full attendance and some gratifying reports are expected.

SUFFRAGETS PLAN ORGANISATION TO "ASSERT RIGHTS"

Organisation Meeting Held Here At Southeastern University Sunday

The Chinese Woman's Suffrage Maintenance Association was inaugurated at an organisation meeting held Sunday at the Southeastern University, Avenue Joffre. More than 300 attended. Miss Wang Li-ming presided, and emphasised the importance of equality of men and women in law and other vocations, education, society and in inheritance rights.

Miss Wan Pu, who had specially travelled from Peking to Shanghai after establishing the Peking Woman's Suffrage Association, pointed out that the time was opportune for women to secure their rights in view of the reconvocation of Parliament and its attempt to draft a national constitution. The provisional constitution stated that all citizens of the Republic of China may vote and be elected to public offices, she said. Women were citizens but they were yet unable to exercise their rights. She urged that women at once assert all the rights and privileges granted to men under a Republican form of Government.

Madame George Hsu Chien, wife of the Minister of Justice; Miss Chen Kia-nai and Miss Chu Chien-sha also spoke. Officers elected by the meeting for the administration of the association are: Shen Yi-ping and Wang Li-ming, executive secretaries; Chen Chia-ching and Yang Ching-hsueh, corresponding secretaries; Huang Chung-han and Tan Sna-yin, committee on publicity and Huang Chia-wei and Chu Chien-sha, committee on program.

"E. COLLINS, 2 B" IS THEME OF BRILLIANT MAGAZINE ESSAY

BY McALISTER COLEMAN

(In The New Republic)

I read of blunders and bigotries, of catastrophic acts of blind ignorance, of the incredible bungling of statesmen and those in high places and then my jaundiced eye, arrived at the sporting page, brightens. It falls upon a name in a column of names.

"E. Collins, 2 b," reads the heartening box-score, "a. b.-4, h-3, o.-2, a.-3, e.-0."

With Senator McCumber, I join in the belief that God's sun still shines over us. Little Eddie Collins is still out there playing as near perfect ball as is permitted mortal man in a universe where error seems to be the order of the day.

Fifteen years ago when the Class of 1907, Columbia College, came up for graduation, its members were confronted with certain time-honored questions concerning their favorite authors, poets, historical characters, newspapers, actresses and habits. Assiduously gathered by the editors of the senior yearbook, the answers to the questions are presented every year to a waiting world as evidences of the tastes of the enlightened. Longfellow and Mrs. Fiske, the New York Times and Thackeray appear with suspicious regularity among the chosen ones. Everyone except Mrs. Fiske and the New York Times realises that here is rather a tribute to the conventions than a true expression of preference.

FAVORITE CHARACTER

While the young men of 1907 were solemnly setting down the names of Julius Caesar and Oliver Cromwell as their favorite historical characters, there entered a slim youth with the cocky walk of the trained athlete who sat himself down and wrote in a bold hand:

"Favorite Historical Character —Pop Anson."

Eddie Collins, Columbia 1907, was already a familiar name in sporing circles. As quarterback of the Varsity football team in 1905—the last to represent Columbia for many drab years—he had furnished the one bright spot in the Yale game of that year, the memory of which still chafes Columbians. No one who sat in the stands and watched Eddie (who could not have weighed more than 125), handle every booming punt that came his way will soon forget the sight. So weak was the Columbia line, so swift the Yale ends that inevitably the midget quarter found two enormous forms hovering above him as he held out his hands for the ball. But Eddie never once signaled for a fair catch. Each time he took the desperate chance of evading those titan arms and each time Eddie's head hit the sparse turf of the American League Park with a thud that resounded over Harlem.

One never expected to see Eddie arise again after one of these astounding tackles. The eyes of the faithful were averted. But behold, there was Eddie on his feet like crushed truth arisen, yelling signals to his vainly struggling cohorts. And once he ran for thirty yards through men who loomed about him as Sequoias.

EDDIE AT SHORT

There is another and more pleasing memory for Columbia men of Eddie covering short in a Yale baseball game at the same park. The Blue and White pitcher that day took unto himself many of the disheartening characteristics of the Blue and White football line. But this time brawn didn't count for as much. Collins stood up under a rapid fire of hits pulling down screaming liners with his bare hands, intercepting certain singles, running over to second to retire rash base-runners. At bat he drove the ball just over the heads of Yale fielders or straight at their amazed feet. Baseball is generally supposed to be a cooperative enterprise but that afternoon Eddie made an outstanding case for the philosophy of individualism.

When a man has been playing professional baseball for fifteen years on top of four years of college ball he is usually referred to as "veteran," "hoary" and "old ancient." I have seen no such references to Collins. Never have I heard a fan remark of Collins, "That bird is cooked. They should bench him." Rather do the bleachers say with a certain awe, "You can't beat that Collins boy, he's in there playing ball all a' time."

But the perfect tribute to Collins comes, I think, from the umpires. These close-fisted cynics are Sir Huberts with their praise. Have you ever noticed that on those happily rare occasions when Eddie fumbles one, the base umpire turns and grins at his manifest discomfiture? It is decidedly unethical for an umpire to express any feeling whatever about the misfortunes of a ball-player. When instead of condoning them they smile, the implications are that the umpires are saying,

"Why Eddie, you of all people to pull a bone like that. I wouldn't have thought it of you, Eddie."

The day that an umpire, instead of kidding Eddie, pats him on the back after a muff, that day he becomes "the veteran Collins."

Collins is sure of his hand from the stands in whatever park he plays, because to the American baseball public he represents two things more to be desired than honey and the honeycomb—the fighting spirit and the competence that makes it effective.

Go up to the Polo Grounds the next time the Sox are in town and watch Collins bring his whole team along with him to impossible victories. If you are wearied of man's seeming impotence, especially wearied perhaps of the inability of the unquestioned fighting spirit of the radical and liberal to arrive anywhere, listen to Collins exhorting his colleagues in "large, divine and comfortable words" and then watch him arrive at second-base an eyeflash ahead of the runner.

Some years ago another Columbia man wrote a haunting poem beginning,

"They went forth to battle
But they always fell."

Sometimes it seems as though all movements for progress in affairs social, political and economic had chosen those lines for a slogan. We are constantly going forth to battle but we seem always to remember the fate of those imagined heroes. Our fighting spirit is there but it is doomed to sterility by the fatalism of the second line.

I would like to have Eddie Collins' opinion of such a philosophy of forlorn hope. I am very much afraid he would descend to the vernacular of the ball park and dismiss it as "the bunk."

SAYS "BUGS" Baer: WILLS CHAMP OF EVERY JACKSON

Has Whipped Buddy, Tut, Joe, Shorty, Gimp, Sam, Abe And General Jackson

Harry Wills has been stepping around the East pushing over minstrels with round heels.

He's flattened every colored fighter by the name of Jackson who ever threw himself on the mercy of the court.

Harry might be a logical opponent for Dempsey, but he can't prove by whipping all the burned cork Jacksons one by one or three by three.

Wills's publicity boys are stiffening Harry's press stuff like a Chinaman working on a pair of cuffs. Every time a Jackson gets hammered sour, they stand up another Jackson in his place. Now, Harry is champion of all the Jacksons who ever pulled a pork chop on over their ears.

Buddy Jackson was a fine nibbler at mouse bait. When he crawled into the ring against Wills, there were about four hundred pounds of gooseflesh waiting to be leveled.

Wills leveled him with a punch. Up pops Buddy Jackson from nowhere in Ohio just boiling over to avenge the insult to the Jacksons.

Bang! And another reskin bit the resin.

Now there aint no Jacksons standing between Wills and Dempseys.

They will fight next year unless Jack decides to go out first and whip all the Joneses.

Suggest New Ways To Decide County Cricket Standings

The present arrangements for settling the County cricket championship continue to be the subject of a sharp controversy. It will be generally admitted, I think, that they are neither perfect nor even satisfactory. It would be comparatively easy to hit upon a method of reckoning if all the Counties played home and home games with each other, but as that is impossible unless the number of clubs competing for the championship be reduced say to 12 all manner of suggestions are being put forward to improve on the scheme now operative. The simplest and most satisfactory way, suggests one reformer, would be for a Board of three cricketers of experience, absolutely free from any personal county interests, to decide upon the points, in accordance with the position of each game at the time it came to an end. This is the course adopted in many chess tournaments, and is generally accepted as being satisfactory, and probably, it is argued, it would be even more so in connexion with the Cricket Championship. Another suggestion is that points possible in an unfinished game should be two and not five, and that the truest way of reckoning would be simply to take the point possible as five in a finished game; two on a first innings decision, and none where an innings each is not completed.

IS YOUR BABY GAINING IN WEIGHT?

One of the surest signs that a baby is making good progress is steady increase in weight. After the first week there should be regular and rapid growth if the baby is being properly nourished.

The most common cause of failure to gain weight is malnutrition, the food is either deficient in quality or quantity, or the digestive organs are not doing their work properly. When the stomach or bowels are at fault all that is necessary to set matters right is the administration of Baby's Own Tablets, the pleasant-tasting Canadian remedy for little ones of all ages. No fear need be entertained as to the wisdom of giving these Tablets, because they are guaranteed, under a Government Analyst's certificate, to contain not a single particle of opiate, narcotic, or other injurious drug, and to be equally helpful and harmless to the youngest infant as to the child of 8 years old or more.

Baby's Own Tablets are just the right remedy for infantile constipation, colic, indigestion, diarrhoea, simple fever, teething troubles and worms. They bring natural, restful health-promoting sleep, restore appetite and make the baby thrive. ASQUITH RETURNS TO HIS ATTACKS ON LLOYD GEORGE

Says Near East Success Was Due To Curzon And Harington

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 15.—Mr. Asquith's speech at West Hartlepool on Saturday was received by an audience of 3,000 people who warmly applauded the many scathing references to the Government's shortcomings.

The former Premier caustically alluded to the impoverished emergency gatherings from which the speaker deduced that the Coalition must be in very serious straits.

He accused the Government of playing the dual role of incendiary and fire brigade and when they succeeded in extinguishing or damping down the flames which their own hands had lighted they appealed for the gratitude of the nation for saving us from the conflagration.

He said that nobody complained of the unostentatious shuffling of our forces at Constantinople in order to prevent the occurrence of what had already overtaken Smyrna, but there was no excuse for the ill-timed and noisy rhodomontade from Downing Street in September.

He observed that Mr. Austen Chamberlain had not attempted to defend "the notorious mysterious document."

Mr. Asquith declared "we were not saved by the Government but partly by the diplomacy of Earl Curzon and the Foreign Office and largely by the tact and forbearance of the Commander-in-Chief."

Mr. Asquith crowned his indictment with the sweeping assertion that after the four years since the Armistice there was not one of the many complicated problems which the war had left in its wake nearer a solution than on the day the Treaty was signed.

He deplored huggermugger arrangements and indefinite postponing of settlements and declared that peace would only come by abandoning the idea that in the future the world is to be governed by a small (Sic) oligarchic group of Powers instead of being the work of all the civilised Powers of the world.

He concluded by saying that if the people repeated the folly committed by the electorate in 1918 they would earn the judgment which history confers on people of great traditions and with a magnificent past who were false to the one and forgetful of the other.

Bradbury Plan Would Aid Germany

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Oct. 14.—The Echo de Paris states that Sir John Bradbury's reparations scheme mentioned yesterday provides that Germany hand each of the Allies in respect of cash payments bills with currency for five years.

Each Ally will be independently free to endorse its bills and discount them in the International market. In respect of payments in kind a similar system of bills will be drawn in gold marks.

These bills, backed by the interested State, will be returned to Germany who will thus possess guarantee from a sound state and while Germany will have to pay the German purveyor in paper marks she will be enabled to obtain a corresponding amount in gold marks abroad.

The papers unanimously refuse to entertain the proposals.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Oct. 14.—It is officially announced the Sir John Bradbury's scheme provides for the removal of the reparations charges from the German budget for two or even four years in order to enable Germany to obtain credits, secondly, fixing the marks exchange and allowing the Reichsbank to sell gold marks against paper marks at a fixed rate determined by a mixed commission, and, thirdly, the reorganisation of the Reparation Commission and its transference to Berlin.

German Bankers Object To Scheme

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Oct. 14.—Opposition is rising against the new Government regulations to arrest the depreciation of the mark. The Hamburg Chamber of Commerce protested and it is reported that banks and insurance companies are declaring that the regulations will be absolutely ruinous and that the import business will pass into the hands of foreigners. The Bremen Chamber of Commerce is equally emphatic.

Mystery Girl Describes Movie Killing

MISS Alice Thornton, only 19 and very pretty, has admitted that Jack Bergen, movie daredevil, who was shot to death by George Kline at his home in Edgewater, N. J., was in love with her, and that she had lured him to Kline's home on the night of the killing so that she might confront him with the charge that he was too friendly with Mrs. Kline. She was jealous of her sweetheart, and when Bergen admitted he had attacked Mrs. Kline at Saranac Lake, N. Y., Kline killed him. She says she thinks Bergen "got what was coming to him" and hopes that Kline will be acquitted.

U. S. Ships To Stay Dry Regardless Of Court Ruling

(China Press Service)

Washington, Oct. 15.—Chairman A. D. Lasker of the United States Shipping Board announced today that the vessels owned by the United States Shipping Board would remain dry regardless of the outcome of a test of the law to be made private shipping lines.

The announcement by Chairman Lasker of the Shipping Board vessels would remain dry means that the ten 'President' ships operated out of Shanghai by the Pacific Mail and Admiral Line will remain dry even though the action brought in behalf of privately owned American lines in New York may give American vessels the privilege of carrying liquor.

If the action is favorable the China and Nanking of the China Mail as well as other American ships would be allowed to carry liquor out of Shanghai.

Newspapers Charge Premier Failed To Answer Questions

(Reuter's Service)

London, October 16.—That Mr. Lloyd George's speech has left the political situation very much where it was is the general trend of comment in this morning's papers, many of which are severely critical. It is declared that the Prime Minister has completely failed to answer the main charges recently brought against the Government. Disappointment is expressed at both the tone and substance of the speech.

The Times says that it dealt with anxious problems awaiting settlement at the Peace Conference in a spirit justifiable only if Christendom were waging a Holy War against the Turks and oblivious of the position of the British Empire as the largest Musulman Power.

The Daily Express declares that the Premier inaugurates an era of goodwill by an attack on the Turks which is an impediment to peace and by criticism of France which will compel M. Poincare publicly to reply.

The Daily News thinks that the speech is a defence of the Coalition only in the sense that it is a defence of Mr. Lloyd George who has never before taken up a position quite so aloof.

The Daily Mail insists that the British Empire must be reconciled with the world of Islam. We must no longer be at cross purposes with the 18,000,000 Mohammedans who are British subjects or under British control. The Mudania agreement should be the starting point of a new and more friendly attitude towards the Moslem peoples.

The speech is variously described as a triumph of obscurity, a misfire and a suppression of facts, though the Daily Chronicle declares that the Premier's vindication of his Straits policy is overwhelming and the episode will always stand to Britain's credit as a nation.

An early general election is everywhere regarded as inevitable but the date and method are matters of speculation. The majority of papers express the opinion that the Premier will watch the effect of his Manchester speech before acting and early November is mentioned as a possible date. Much political activity prevails.

Mah Jong Making Big Hit In The U.S.

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, Oct. 12.—That Mah Jong has taken hold of the foreign markets is attested by the fact that the city of Soochow alone produces $1,000,000 of sets every year.

Each set costs roughly $8 to which must be added an export tax of $2. These sets are then retailed in America for G.$25 according to travelers' tales.

The Shanghai merchants get together the best of the sets and appear to be unable to meet the American demand. The s.s. Nile is reported to have carried a shipment of 20,000 sets when it sailed on the 6th instant.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, October 15.—It is reported that General Wu Pei-fu reached Paoting yesterday to attend the military conference which is being held there. The conference is expected to consider the Peking political situation before dealing with military affairs.

Mr. Hsiung Ping-chi, the newly-appointed Civil Governor of Shantung, left for Paoting yesterday to attend the conference as President Li Yuan-hung's representative.

Numerous rumours are being circulated regarding the Premiership but it is semiofficially stated that no move will be taken until the results of the Paoting conference are known.

Mr. Hsu Chien, Minister of Justice in the Wang Chung-hua Ministry arrived yesterday from Shanghai, a day too late to take his place in the Cabinet.

ARMED ROBBERS GET $1,600 IN WEEK-END RAIDS

Money and jewelry to the total value of over $1,600 was stolen in two week-end armed robberies in the Settlement, while a third robbery failed when the thieves took fright.

Shortly before midnight Saturday night four armed men entered a house on 939 North Shanse Road and got away with money and jewels valued at $1,500 after threatening the inmates. On Sunday night six men stole $150 from a Chinese house between Ward and Kwenming Roads. They fired one shot to terrorise the victims.

Five men, three of whom were armed, attempted to rob a house at 445 Myburgh Road but fled when a girl gave the alarm.

They All Agree!

"I have never seen a picture which in breadth of conception or care in detail which could compare with it. To say 'Way Down East' is magnificent conveys little. But it is magnificent. To say it is gorgeous may very likely tell that it has myriads of people, that it has scores of effects. As a matter of fact the cast is comparatively small in numbers. It is extraordinary large in talents."

—DOMINO in "THE CHINA PRESS"

"It is not often that an audience stands to cheer a motion picture but it happened at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre last night" (New York Journal of Commerce). "There is no rival to Griffith. There is never a dull second. If you turn your head or close your eyes you miss something vital" (Fred J. McIsaac in the Boston American). "Nothing so dramatic has torn the COMPOSURE of a San Francisco audience and stirred it to madness in recent years (San Francisco Chronicle).

New York Times: "It is worked out with that same story-telling art, that imagination, sense of beauty and ingenuity of craftsmanship which have made Griffith's name a great one. The audience sat in rapture to watch its first unfolding here. It is uncommonly well done and the effect is breath-taking."

"From the slow lifting of the curtain amid the plaintive strains of "Home, Sweet Home," to its fall amid the tumultuous cheers of a wildly enthusiastic audience, "Way Down East" is more than a motion picture—it is a story of human hearts, unfolded in a simple, soul-reaching way, under the master guidance of D. W. Griffith. It will go thundering down the ages because it is human."—Boston Traveler.

Editorial in the Boston Post by Edwin A. Grozier, editor and publisher of the Post: "This remarkable film should be seen by everybody; it is clean, sweet and beautiful, enlivened by humor and thrilling beyond description. When this art reaches so high a standard the Post deems it a duty to publicly commend it."

"It is an all-star cast which carries out the story and quite eclipses any case that ever appeared on the speaking stage" (New York Evening Telegram).

"The most satisfactory quality of this screen masterpiece is its very marked realism. No one overacts and every one in the carefully selected company is true to type" (New York Sun). "The acting is of the first order" (New York Journal of Commerce).

Mr. Griffith produces pictures of startling beauty that suggest famous landscapes painted by masters (New York Evening Telegram). "The pastoral beauty of the rustic scenes almost literally brought the whiff of lilac and apple-blossoms into the auditorium" (Los Angeles Record).

"Many of the country scenes suggest Corot paintings with their misty trees and luminous atmosphere" (San Francisco Chronicle). Full of exquisitely beautiful scenes. Composed with rare skill" "(New York Evening Post). "The scenes are wondrously beautiful" (New York Journal of Commerce).

Tokio War Office Denies Arms Sale

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Oct. 16.—A lengthy statement given out by the Premier's Office says:

"The report that the Japanese military authorities have disposed of seized arms in Siberia and are guilty of an action which runs counter to the policy of the Government is altogether unfounded."

The statement gives in detail the conditions under which the Japanese Expeditionary Force in April, 1920, took over the control of 300,000 tons of arms and munitions, over which, the statement declares, the Force has since maintained the strictest guard. These remain entirely intact in 17 warehouses and also in the open area several miles around Vladivostok. The statement continues that the disappearance of the Czech arms, for which the Japanese Expeditionary Force declined responsibility, will be made clear in the course of the court-martial now being held.

Doctor Brings Suit On Medical Attendance Claim

Suit for Tls. 135, claimed as fee for medical attendance, was begun in the British Supreme Court before Judge Peter Grain yesterday by Dr. Paul Martin against Mr. Percy Wilford Pate. The claim is for medical attendance alleged to have been given Mrs. Pate.

Mr. F. J. Schuhl appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. L. K. Kentwell for the defendant.

Dr. Martin stated that he had been a medical surgeon for the past two years, and was a reserve Army Medical officer in France. He had met the defendant socially at the Palace Hotel and then professionally, when on the night of January 8 last he was summoned at midnight to attend to his wife. He found Mrs. Pate suffering from a floating kidney, which was distinctly felt on the right side. The patient also suffered from severe pain, and he administered morphia by injection to relieve the pain.

He called the next day again and found her very nervous, and still suffering from a little pain and a slight cough with temperature at 100 8-10. He ordered her to bed and on the following day he visited her again in the evening. He made a second diagnosis and it confirmed the previous examination.

Mrs. Pate was extremely nervous and weak, and plaintiff suggested that she should go to the hospital. At first she hesitated. He called up three or four nurses of whose competence he was assured but was unable to get them. Mrs. Pate suggested Miss Salter of the Victoria Nursing Home, and plaintiff rang her up but was told that she was out. Being unable to get Miss Salter, Mrs. Pate preferred to go to the Nursing Home, but the Victoria Nursing Home had no rooms. She arranged to go to Dr. Fearn's Home, and at seven o'clock in the evening the plaintiff rang up to the Home and was informed that Mr. Pate had cancelled the reservation. That evening plaintiff called on Mrs. Pate in her room in the Palace Hotel and found her temperature had dropped to 101 2-10. Miss Salter was in attendance.

TELLS OF OTHER CALLS

On the next day he made two calls and on Thursday night he paid a call, and found her very much better. That day he had also made a another visit in consequence of a telephone call from Mr. Pate, and on Friday another visit was paid, when he found the temperature had slipped to 100 with no further developments. On the following Sunday he called and found her improved.

He was told that Dr. Bryson had attended her. On Monday night he was called because of the pain from which Mrs. Pate was suffering and plaintiff again administered morphia, which gave the patient relief.

On Wednesday, January 18, plaintiff called and found the patient better with the temperature down to 99 6-10. The following night he was again called on account of an attack of pain that Mrs. Pate had. Two days after he received a chit from Mr. Pate asking for a consultation. In the course of that week he spoke to Dr. Fresson but failed to get a room for Mrs. Pate. Mr. Pate suggested consultation with Dr. Bluemnstock and Dr. Gerngross. Plaintiff suggested that the defendant could call in any doctor that he liked, and on Saturday he received a chit from the defendant stating that his wife was being taking to the hospital. After that he did not attend Mrs. Pate. Plaintiff made 13 day visits and three night visits and made eight analyses, he said. Plaintiff stated that Mrs. Pate refused to go under an X-Ray examination.

The Judge: There was some suggestion that Dr. Martin told Mrs. Pate that she was a dope maniac.

Mr. Schuhl: The reason why I have not put that question to Dr. Martin is that I was waiting for Mrs. Pate to give evidence and then refute it.

DENIES STATEMENT

Mr. Schuhl (to plaintiff): Did you ever tell Mr. Pate that his wife was a morphia maniac?—I did not. Nor did I make the statement to his wife.

Was an X-Ray taken?—I was told that it was. Dr. Lambert showed me a film. The X-Ray film showed a shadow distinctly on the side of the right kidney descending to the abdomen. The second shadow was low down. I told Mrs. Pate that an operation in her case was necessary, and also suggested that I would like to keep her under observation in the hospital. She gave me her history as having been ill for many years and having been treated by many doctors in Shanghai.

It is suggested that you refused to allow Mr. Pate to consult with other doctors?—It is not true.

She suggests that you gave her medicine that caused her to vomit continually?—It is not true.

At the time that you were attending Mrs. Pate was she suffering from typhoid?—She had no symptoms of typhoid.

Mrs. Pate suggests that she was never treated by any doctor for floating kidney?—I believe not.

It is suggested that you made a wrong diagnosis?—My diagosis was correct.

And that you administered dangerous drugs, like morphia atropine, etc. Why did you administer morphine?—It is the only drug to relieve pain. Atropine is given in conjunction with it for the purpose of safety and for efficacy.

IS CROSS-EXAMINED

The plaintiff was then cross-examined by Mr. Kentwell.

Mr. Kentwell: In the course of my cross-examination I may say something that is offensive. You told the Court that you arrived in Shanghai in 1920. Where did you stay then?—At the Astor. A year after I removed to the Palace.

It is correct that you are not Mrs. Pate's regular medical attendant?—No, I am not.

Do you know of the existence of the Shanghai Medical Society? Have you ever been a member of this Society?—Yes, I know of the existence of this Society. I am not a member of this Society.

Your application for membership was rejected?—Yes, it was.

You were called upon to explain yourself to the members of this Society for malpractice and misconduct?—No. I demanded a hearing and consent was given and I was heard by the members.

What happened at this interview with the members of the Society?—There were charges made against me. I might say that among the personnel of the Medical Society were Dr. Ransom and Dr. Fresson. At this meeting charges were made.

CHARGES NOT UPHELD

One was that I solicited patients. This charge was not substantiated in any way.

Another charge was that I operated on patients unnecessarily. One case was mentioned, a man who arrived here by one of the Pacific Mail boats. I was called to the boat to attend him in an emergency as he was suffering from severe pain which was diagnosed as cholic with a possibility of stone. A series of pictures was taken, but he was very anxious to continue on his trip to Hongkong. The pictures were negatives and there was no discussion as to operating on the man and he was not operated upon. The charge was therefore not substantiated.

There was another charge also that I had caused to be put in the public press the names of certain patients and the name of Mr. Leeds was mentioned. I testified at this meeting that I had no knowledge of it. The reporter of THE CHINA PRESS had called me up and asked me whether I was attending William Leeds and I said that I was. On Sunday morning an account of his condition in the hospital appeared together with my name.

Another charge was brought that I took patients from other physicians and the case of Mrs. Brown was mentioned. Mrs. Brown was mentioned to me by a certain Mrs. Pratt who lived in the Palace Hotel. She came to me and there was immediate attendance on her. She had consulted many doctors and I diagnosed her case somewhat different from others. An operation was suggested and she enquired whether I would mind having Dr. Jackson. I said that I would be only too glad and I called up Dr. Jackson, and he denied having Mrs. Brown as her patient. I told him that I would be pleased to have him present at the operation. This was also unsubstantiated. There was no charge of malpractice.

ALLEGES PREJUDICE

In spite of your explanation the Society was of the opinion that their previous decision should stand: Which I consider is a prejudiced view of it.

Physicians and surgeons are not required to be registered in Shanghai. If you want to practise in the Hospital and the Victoria Nursing Home you have to be registered at the Consulates.

Are you registered in the American Consulate to practice in the Hospital and the Victoria Nursing Home? I am.

I take it that registration at the Consulate is optional? I do not know.

You were with Dr. Ransom? I was associated with him.

The Judge: Why did you cease to be associated with Dr. Ransom? I considered it intolerable. There was no contract. I left because I wanted to.

Mr. Kentwell: Dr. Ransom had a sort of animus against you? Yes. Dr. Ransom wanted me to remain.

In what capacity was Dr. Ransom in the Shanghai Medical Society?—President. I was not with his firm when he was President.

So the charge brought against you by the Medical Society was after you severed your connection with Dr. Ransom? Yes.

Don't you think that morphia is a very objectionable thing to give to a patient suffering from kidney—It is given in acute pain. It is the only remedy that can relieve pain.

AFTERNOON SESSION

At the afternoon session Mr. Schuhl, in redirect examination, brought out the evidence that when Dr. Martin left Dr. Ransom, he did so against the latter's wishes. Mr. Schuhl introduced a statement made by Dr. Ransom in the United States Court for China when Dr. Ransom said he wanted Dr. Martin to remain. Mr. Schuhl insisted that Dr. Martin left the Ransom firm of his own accord. Dr. Martin testified that he was engaged by Dr. Ransom to do surgery for the firm and left after two or three months' association because he decided "it was not longer desirable."

Dr. Thomas B. Dunn was the next witness called and was questioned as to the length of incubation for typhoid and the affects of morphine. Dr. Dunn said that morphine would be administered if there was the severe pain to which Dr. Martin testified and atrophine is often given with morphine.

Dr. Anne Walter Fearn testified that Mrs. Pate was her patient in 1915 and 1916, when she operated on her. Dr. Fearn regarded Mrs. Pate as "a neurotic patient." Dr. Fearn said that Dr. Martin had many cases at her hospital and he was "a very carefu• practictioner."

In cross-examination Mr. Kentwell said: "Mr. Pate says that you did not operate on Mrs. Pate."

Dr. Fearn retorted: "Then he told a deliberate falsehood."

Mr. Kentwell asked how many cases Dr. Martin had at Dr. Fearn's Hospital. Mrs. Fearn answered that every doctor sent cases and Dr. J. W. Jackson sent her 500 cases. Mr. Kentwell suggested that Dr. Jackson had been in Shanghai 20 years and Mrs. Fearn answered that the hospital was but five years old and Dr. Jackson had been away two years. Dr. Martin had sent her 190 cases in two years, she said.

Dr. Fearn gave evidence as to symptoms and treatment of typhoid, corroborating Dr. Martin and Dr. Dunn. Dr. Martin's charges were reasonable, she said.

Mr. Kentwell asked the court to hear Dr. Fresson before adjourning but Judge Grain said he could not prolong the hearing any further. The case will be resumed Wednesday morning.

PROFESSOR GEE RETURNING FOR MEDICAL WORK

Will Assist Development Of Science Teaching In China

Among passengers returning to Shanghai from America today is Professor N. Gist Gee, who returns to China under the China Medical Board of the Rockefeller Foundation to assist in the work of promoting pre-medical education in this country. Professor Gee was educated at Wofford College, Harvard University and Chicago University, and has had extended teaching experience both in China and the United States. He was for several years Professor of Natural Sciences at Soochow University, and is well acquainted with educational problems in the Far East.

Professor Gee's appointment follows on a recent tour made by officers of the China Medical Board to study various institutions for pre-medical education, and his work will carry on the plans made at that time. He will visit universities and colleges in China, assist in plans for the development of science teaching, and will also act as a link between the Peking Union Medical College and pre-medical departments of the various educational institutions, maintaining close relations between their faculties. It is hoped that this will do much to consolidate educational effort in China and to unify the standards of science instruction.

Alston Tendered Dinner By Clubmen Of Peking

Banquet Is Occasion Of High Compliments By Sir Francis Aglen Of Customs Service

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, October 12.—Sir Beilby Alston was the Chief Guest at a farewell dinner given at the Peking Club last evening by a representative gathering of British Members of the Club. Sir Francis Aglen presided and there were upwards of forty present, including the senior Members of the Staff of the British legation, who were also guests.

Sir Francis Aglen, in an exceedingly interesting speech, drew upon his long experience of China and his intimate knowledge of foreign relations with this country in linking up Sir Beilby Alston's period of service in China with the periods of his illustrious predecessors.

Among these brilliant Diplomats Sir Francis instanced several whose work represented the chief historical features of foreign influence in China. Touching lightly upon their individual characteristics he told many amusing incidents of their careers known to but a few if any others present down to the time of Sir John Jordan's departure and the extremely difficult years in which Sir Beilby Alston had maintained with such tact and skill the best traditions of the British Empire. The history of foreign relations with this country would give Sir Beilby Alston an honoured place among British Ministers to China.

Gracefully Sir Francis Aglen referred to the rare courtesy that the British Minister had shown on all occasions to those with whom he had been brought into contact in the course of diplomatic affairs and social intercourse, to the unvarying consideration he had shown always to British subjects, to Sir Beilby's great charm of manner and good fellowship, which had made him a most welcome guest at all gatherings.

Voicing the feelings of those there who had gathered there to honour the Minister and those whom the limited space had precluded, Sir Francis expressed sincere regret at the forthcoming departure of Sir Beilby Alston, and for the illness which necessitated his removal to a warmer climate. All hoped that the transfer would lead to complete recovery.

Sir Francis Aglen, whose address had met with frequent applause, then proposed the health of Sir Beilby and Lady Alston whom all were so delighted to honor and their son and their daughter with hearty wishes for their success and happiness.

Sir Beilby Alston, in a delightfully humorous speech, recounted numerous incidents of diplomatic and international life, having to pause frequently to allow the laughter and applause to subside, and concluding with sincere expressions of appreciation of the honour paid to him that evening.

DECLARE SOVIET AGENTS INCITE HANKOW STRIFE

(Independent News Agency)

Hankow, Oct. 13.—Bolshevik agents are found at work in Hankow, where Russian Soviet representatives have been engaging themselves in instigating labor troubles and keeping them astir among the legion of workmen in this center. They are suspected to be responsible for the recent strikes on the Canton-Hankow Railway, Peking-Hankow Railway, the Hanyang Iron and Steel Works and a number of other government and private works and factories, and the big labor demonstrations and parades are believed to be under their machination. Government detectives and secret service men are set on work in the native cities to single out Chinese agents of the Russian Soviets with a view to avoiding possible labor troubles among various native industries.

The presence of Russian agitators in Hankow is further borne out by the fact that the Commissioner of Foreign Affairs of Hankow has recently received instructions from the Waichiaopu asking him to investigate the conditions and gather statistics of unemployed Russians in Hankow. In general business of Russians in Hankow is particularly stagnant on account of, among other reasons, the close-up of tea export to Russia, which formerly constituted their principal line of trade here, and the breakdown of their home government.

Outside of the Hankow district, Soviet agitators are no less busy, and according to information received by Tuchun Hsiao Yao-nan of Hupeh from the Peking Ministry of the Interior, they are found in large number in the provinces of Anhwei and Kiangsu, while in Hupeh their work is self-evident. It is stated that the Russian agitators are trying to start a conflagration of labor unrest in the Yangtze Valley, and their activities are strongly believed to have been warranted and sponsored by certain Chinese politicians. The latter are attempting to create such chaos and disturbances in Central China as would eventually upset the balance of political equilibrium among the Central provinces.

The provinces of Honan and Shantung where native banditry is running rampant are also the objective of these Russian agents, and particularly, Honan offers the most receptive field for Bolshevik propaganda, as an increasing number of outlaws and robbers are virtually squeezing up the resources of Honanese who, being desperate, would readily accept Bolshevism as a way out of their hopeless situation. Tuchuns of those two provinces are under instruction to devise measures to prevent the entry of Russians into their provinces so as to ward off the unseen troubles.

ous by the constancy and malignity with which he has pursued the Government for years. He heard that Mr. Chamberlain and I were going to defend the Government.

"He said: 'What better proof do you want of their guilt: not only that it makes matters worse.'

"That is a new doctrine. Here is a poor fellow, charged with every conceivable offence. The moment he pleads not guilty and begins to defend himself, the prosecuting counsel shrieks with joy and says:

THANKS CHAMBERLAIN

"Now is that not only a proof of his guilt but an actual aggravation of it?' (Laughter) Gentlemen! there are queer people let loose in the press in these days.

"My task in explaining the action of the Government has been rendered mery much easier by the speech which Mr. Chamberlain, speaking with hereditary point and force, delivered yesterday. But there are a few things that I feel bound to say, although they may be repetition, because they must be brought home.

"Sir! what were our objects in the action we took? They were threefold. The first was to secure the freedom of the Straits for the commerce of all nations, the second was to prevent war from spreading into Europe with all the inconceivable possibilities of a conflagration and the third was to prevent a repetition in Constantinople and in Greece of the scenes of intolerable horror which have been enacted in Asia Minor during the last six or seven years.

"I have not much to say about the Straits. It is not necessary to point out the importance of securing the Straits against a repetition of what happened in 1914. That prolonged the war for two years and it very nearly brought upon the cause of the Allies irreparable disaster.

"But, apart from that, it is the only road to the fairway of the Black Sea where you have got raw materials and food surplus, raw materials and food in times of peace, in normal times such as no other part of Europe could supply and of the commerce of that part of the world one-third has always been in British ships.

"Vital to us and vital to humanity, we could not have those Straits barred without giving away the biggest the most important prize which we won by our victory over Turkey in the Great War and which lost us so much in life and treasure.

WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN

"As to the spreading of the war into Europe, you have only got to think of what would have happened if Turkey, flushed with victory, with no army to resist, crossed the Bosphorus, passed into Thrace and occupied Constantinople.

"Do you think he would have stopped in Eastern Thrace? Do you think he would have camped on the Maritza?

"Who was to stop them, who would have stopped them going into Western Thrace and possibly passing into Salonika? You know what that means. War! and the war of 1914 practically began in the Balkans.

"It was a situation full of peril and yet we had to act promptly, resolutely and firmly and make it clear that we were not going to allow the fires to sweep over the Bosphorus.

"What would have happened in Constantinople I dare not tell you. Sir Charles Harington warned us what might have happened (a terrible catastrophe.)

"The population of Constantinople is only half Turkish, barely half. There are hundreds of thousands of Armenians and Greeks there. I could call the testimony of a gentleman who has been military adviser and pamphleteer of Abingdon Street, General Maurice. He said that, if we did not hold Chanak, there would be scenes in Constantinople, by the side of which the fires of Smyrna would pale.

"I am not going into the question of who is responsible in Smyrna. I am not going to discuss whether the Greeks provoked the Turks or the Turks the Greeks. It is enough for me to call attention to the fact that since 1914 the Turks, according to official testimony we have received, have slaughtered in cold blood 1,500,000 Armenians, men women and children, and 500,000 Greeks without any provocation at all.

"TIME TO COOL"

"I think it was right that, before the Turkish Army should be allowed to cross into Europe in the flush of victory and with the blood of Smyrna on their hands, it should have had time to cool and that we should have guarantees that there would be protection for minorities in Europe.

"That is all we did. We are pledged to shield these people. I am told it is not our business. I am sorry to say that the Liberals have been pleading that it was none of our business to interfere between the Turks and their victims.

"What business is it of Britain's? If the Turk insists, leave him alone. Let him cross the Straits. Let him cross to Constantinople (a free road and a fairway for the shambles.)

"That was not the old Liberal policy. It was not the policy I certainly was brought up in. It was not what I was taught in my youth that English, Scotch and Welshmen should every morning repeat reverently the ditany of the cynic:

" 'Am I my brother's keeper?' That Britain should ace the world with the brand of Cain upon her brow. That was not the old Liberal doctrine (Cheers), neither ought it to be the new doctrine of the party that was led by Gladstone.

"I am told, I think by the Liberal papers, that I must not invoke the name of Gladstone. I can understand the reluctance to call that great spirit from the vasty deep to witness the spectacle of Liberal leaders and Liberal newspapers attacking a Government because they are doing their best to prevent the Turks from crossing into Europe and committing atrocities upon the Christian population.

IN LINE WITH TRADITION

"I maintain that the policy we adopted was the policy which is in accordance with the highest interest and traditions of this land and we have reason to be proud that it succeeded.

"You had another little social function here a few days ago. It was addressed, I believe, by Lord Gladstone. It was rather a shock to me to see a Gladstone denouncing us because we were trying to protect the Greek minorities against the Turk.

"It was rather a shock (a Gladstone! I would have taken it from almost anyone else. But a Gladstone! He was peculiarly offensive, and I am sorry to say he has been.)

"I am sorry. No one has greater respect for the name which he bears. I know the difficulties of any man without adequate gifts of laughter, who has to carry through his life a very great name, but, if he only does it with becoming modesty, he would secure the compassion, if not the respect, of everyone.

"I am sorry to say that Lord Gladstone has never played that part and he has given himself airs such as his great father never in his most exalted days ever took upon himself. He has actually excommunicated us from the Liberal party.

"Well! the Papacy is not an hereditary office and Mr. Gladstone in his most powerful moments never excommunicated Liberals who dared to disagree but invited them back with all his great powers of appeal and persuasion.

"But Lord Gladstone excommunicates us. What service has he rendered to Liberalism? I know of no service but one. He is the best living embodiment of the Liberal doctrine that quality is not hereditary. I am sorry but I have stood it I cannot tell you how long, speech after speech of intolerable abuse. I am told that I ought to bear it like a Christian. (A voice: 'You are doing so,') but there are too many people about in the world now who think it is the business of a Christian to allow himself to be massacred by the Turks and for the Turks without ever striking a blow.

HIS CHRISTIANITY

"I am not that sort of Christian and as long as I have a sword in my hand and God gives me strength to use it I will. Well! So much for him. There is no more ridiculous spectacle on the stage than a dwarf strutting before the footlights in garments he has inherited from a giant.

"I am told that we were right in our object in keeping the Turks out of Europe, preventing a massacre in Constantinople and in ensuring the freedom of the Straits (All that was right but we ought not to have used force. We ought to have argued with them. We ought to have persuaded them). He is a gentleman who is very amenable to persuasion.

"Well, do let us look at facts. Sir Charles Harington in a message printed yesterday attributed the fact that he succeeded largely by the reinforcements we sent him and, if you have any doubt about it just you hark back to the speech which he delivered before the Turks. Sir Charles Harington was doubtful whether they were going to sign and this is his last appeal.

"He told the Turks that conciliation had been carried to the utmost limit and warned Ismet Pasha that Great Britain had on the spot a very large and powerful fleet, large numbers of aeroplanes and guns and by no means a negligible force of infantry, in fact that Great Britain would be a very awkward enemy but a very valuable friend. Well! now that is the sort of thing the Turk understands and I am not at all surprised at what followed in the statement that it made a very great impression.

"Just think for a moment what would have happened. We were advised by both our naval and military authorities that we could not assure the freedom of the Straits for peaceful commerce unless we held both sides. The Turks advanced upon us, the French retired and the Italians followed close on their heels. We have been told in speeches and in the press that it was our business to do what our Allies were doing.

"Suppose we had followed meekly behind France. The Kemalist forces would have been at Chanak. The next thing that would have happened would have been the crossing of the Straits. Gallipoli was held by a very weak Senegalese battalion with orders that they were not to fire on the Turks. Both sides of the Straits would have been in Kemalist hands.

RIDICULES ARGUMENT

"Do you think you would have got them out? You would have gone to the peace conference and said: 'Will you please get away from Chanak and Gallipoli?' and Kemal would have said: 'We will guarantee the Straits for you! Would anyone have gone to drive them out of the position afterwards, if they had not yielded before the conference? Of course not! You know what it cost before to attempt it.

"To hold it is a very different matter. Something would have happened in the Bosphorus. They would have been in Constantinople: Sir Charles Harington warned us that there were 15,000 to 20,000 Turks, all of the most fanatical character inside Constantinople. (Think of it: it is too horrible.) If we had allowed them to pass.

"Then our critics say: 'Why did you not have an understanding with your Allies?' We did (Applause). Only a few weeks ago we receive a message from the French Government that, if the Greeks or the Turks invaded the neutral zone, they would have to be resisted by force by the Allies. We accepted that. We thought they meant it. How were we to believe that it was only intended for one side? Not only did we think so but the generals also thought so and troops were sent by the various Allied generals but they had to be recalled.

"It is no use trying to bluff a first-rate fighting animal and the Turk is that, whatever else he is. You can try bluff with cowards. It is no use with really brave men. They know instinctively when you mean business and when you don't.

"What were we to do? Were we to send a message to Mustapha Kemal saying: 'You must not cross this neutral zone, otherwise we will resist you by force,' and the moment he uses force the British troops were to run away? Is that the policy?

THE FRENCH HORSE

"I remember visiting one of the chateaux of France during the Peace Conference. I think it was the Chateau St. Jean and I was very struck with a figure of a very fierce-looking dragon with flaming eyes, determined mien and fire snorting out of his nostrils, but with his tail firmly wedged between his legs.

"Was the British Government to present this spectacle of the British dragon to the world in that humiliating attitude. Well! We did not. You can if you like say we threatened. It is always a mistake to threaten unless you mean it and it is because not merely we threatened but we meant it and the Turks knew that we meant it that you have peace now.

"Before I dismiss that part of the topic, let me say how much we owe to the promptitude, alacrity and enthusiasm with which Australia and New Zealand supported us. The fact that they wired to say that there were thousands, nay, tens of thousands of Australians and New Zealanders ready to come over so as to prevent the graves of Gallipoli from being desecrated that contributed to this happy result.

"And even since I came into this room I have had a very interesting telegram from Manchester: 'Good Luck and Greeting from a lot of 1915 Gallipoli boys and Medical Officers of the 42nd Division.'

"But I am told that we have departed from the methods of old diplomacy. That is very sad. Mr. Asquith said why did we not emulate the patient, forbearing policy which Lord Grey displayed in 1914 towards the Germans instead of indulging in the amateur tactics of Downing Street today. Well! the old patient forbearing policy of 1914 ended in the most disastrous war which this world has ever seen. The amateur diplomacy of 1922 has at any rate brought peace.

"I am not blaming anyone for 1914 but I think that Lord Grey and Mr. Asquith, knowing their own difficulties in the past, might have been a little more forbearing and patient, not merely with the Germans but with their own countrymen.

VERY CRITICAL

"They have been very critical, very critical indeed, but, believe me, I do not like entering into an altercation with old friends and colleagues and I have honestly done my best to keep out of it. But when in speech after speech I have seen them using the whole of their great experience and great intellects to emphasise the shortcomings of others, it is very difficult for me to refrain for I am a fairly pugnacious animal (laughter).

No one knows better than Lord Grey that when you come to the quarter of international affairs there are factors over which you have no control—none. You have no control over factors at home but infinitely less over the elements which make the position abroad. Where national prejudices, national traditions, national interests and national outlooks all differ, it is not easy to secure agreement and to secure results.

"Lord Grey knows that. Take 1914. His proposals were admirable, his temper, I agree with Mr. Asquith, was one of the very best, but he was not the Kaiser's advisor and he had no influence over the German General Staff. They had their own ambitions. They had their own ideas. It is just possible that language less indirect, that language more direct, language more emphatic might have stopped it but it is easy to be wise after the event.

"But I am not criticising. I am only pointing out that it was the greatest, the most calamitous diplomatic failure that the world has ever seen and that it was due to conditions over which Lord Grey had no control. He therefore ought to be charitable with others.

"Take the whole of the incidents of that period. Lord Grey sought to make peace in the Balkans. He made peace but that place did not stand the joltings of the train that carried it from London to the Balkans. It fell to pieces before it ever reached Sofia. That was not his fault.

The plan was good, the intentions were excellent but there were events which he could not control.

TRIED TO STOP THEM

"He tried to prevent the Turks from entering the war against us—a most important matter, but German diplomacy was too strong for him. He tried to prevent Bulgaria from entering the war against us. There again German diplomacy defeated us. Well now, I have never taunted Lord Grey with that.

I do not taunt him now but what I say is that when you get into the realm of foreign affairs there are things that I will not say you cannot visualise because you do but there are factors you cannot influence. It is no use standing on a cairn of gigantic failures and throwing stones at people who have to work through difficulties which are just as great as his. You may succeed you may fail.

"The task is always a complicated one, the task is always a baffling one and all you can do is to keep at it and use every means at your disposal. The criticism should be dispensed with great care and great tolerance and even with great charity when you are dealing with foreign affairs.

"I don't want to use any bitter words, if I can avoid it, about old colleagues. I am told our Eastern policy has been a series of improvisations which I have flung out of what is supposed to be a rather fertile brain just to suit the caprices of the moment.

What has been that policy? The policy undoubtedly was first of all to secure the freedom of the Straits, and secondly, to take away from Turkish rule the non-Christian populations whom you could not entrust to Turkish charge. Whose policy was that? I did not improvise it; I came into it.

"When I came into office in 1916 I found a series of agreements with Russia, France, Italy and even Greece, which completely partitioned Turkey. There was only a small strip of Anatolia left to the Turks. Who did that? Lord Grey and Mr. Asquith. I was a member of the Government and I approved it and I make no complaint about it. But I want to say that was not my policy.

POLICY WAS APPROVED

"More than that, that policy was approved by Liberals and Conservatives and I think I may say Labor Leaders. They were all members of the Cabinet that dealt with it. Earl Balfour, Mr. Bonar Law, Lord Lansdowne, Mr. Chamberlain as well as Lord Grey, Mr. Asquith, Mr. Churchill and myself, we were all committed to it but the direction was in the hands of Mr. Asquith and Lord Grey and it was not a policy which I initiated. I came into it.

"Turkey had been almost completely partitioned by agreements entered into with the various Powers before I ever became Prime Minister.

"Why did it fail? It failed owing to circumstances over which neither Lord Grey nor Mr. Asquith nor myself had the slightest control. Russia's collapse. Armenia, Constantinople and the Straits had been given to Russia.

I do not mind at all but it was a very shortsighted policy. I agreed to it and therefore have got no right to criticise either Mr. Asquith or Lord Grey but I am, however, bound to confess that it was very shortsighted policy, because if the Russian revolution had come off, after instead of during the war you would have had Bolshevists at this moment in Constantinople and the Straits. It was a mistake but we were all in it. Don't imagine I am blaming anybody, that I am not taking part of the blame myself.

"What was the other thing that happened? The Italian Ministry that was responsible for the policy of taking southern Anatolia into the occupation of Italy fell and a new Ministry came in with other ideas. Neither Lord Grey nor Mr. Asquith nor myself were responsible for turning that Ministry out.

"What is the next? President Wilson was under the impression that he could have persuaded America to take the mandate for Armenia. Well! His health broke down. We had no control over that.

FALL OF VENIZELOS

"And then came one of the greatest disasters of all—the fall of that great, wise and sagacious statesman, M. Venizelos, and the substitution of the feeble, futile, foolish administration that followed it.

"Well! all of these are circumstances over which no Government in this country had any control, so we have had to recast our policy. We have made best of it and we have succeeded in securing the freedom of the Straits which is not merely a primary British interest but a primary human interest. We have succeeded also in holding the peace until you had established the freedom of that great and gifted people, the Arab race, and also some sort of protection for minorities in Eastern Europe.

"So much for that part. I might just add one word before I dispose of this part of the case about what is said that these treaties were mine and prepared by myself. I am fully responsible for them but it is supposed that I took it out of the hands of the Foreign Office—the Treaty of Sevres and all the others.

"I will read a short extract from a memorandum, prepared by the Foreign Office, not for myself but prepared for the Cabinet. This is how the Treaty of Sevres was prepared:—

"The general basis of settlement was explored by M. Berthelot of the French Foreign Office and Lord Curzon in December 1919 at the Foreign Office.' All this is supposed to have been done from Downing Street by my Secretariat, but the Supreme Council did not assemble until February 1920 in London and after several meetings delegated the work of preparing the treaty to a committee of Foreign Ministers and Ambassadors, sitting at the Foreign Office.'

CURZON'S WORK

"The meeting was presided over by Lord Curzon. I never attended it. I approved of it. The conferences this year—the conference at the beginning of the year as well as the recent conference—have been attended exclusively by our Foreign Ministers. I assented. I was consulted, but Lord Curzon with great ability, great knowledge and great experience conducted the proceedings.

"I think it necessary to say that because of the rubbishy statements which are made about these treaties having been prepared by my Cabinet Secretariat without the consent of the Foreign Office. They were prepared at the Foreign Office by Foreign Office officials under the chairmanship of the Foreign Minister and I think it is absolutely necessary that it should be said at the present stage.

"As for the amateurs, who are the amateurs who have agreed to this policy? I will name them. Lord Grey, Mr. Asquith, Lord Curzon, Lord Balfour, Lord Lansdowne, Mr. Bonar Law and myself; in France, M. Clemenceau and M. Poincare who was President of the Republic at the time and President Wilson.

"A fine array of amateurs. There you are. I would not waste your time, had it not been that the statement has been published ad nauseam by men who know nothing about it from beginning to end and has been doing mischief.

"I dismiss this part of the case by saying that by the action that has been taken by the skilful representatives of this country you have secured not merely a bloodless peace but a peace of which Great Britain at any rate need not be ashamed.

"Now I am sorry to say that I have got to another topic and I must say, if you will tolerate me, a few personal words. I am sorry to obtrude my personality upon even the indulgent and kindly audience of my native city but unfortunately it is a subject of controversy and I have got to deal with it as I would with any other controversy that affects affairs of Government.

HITS AT MACLEAN

"I see Sir Donald Maclean, a friend of mine and a friend I like very much and for whom I have a very great respect, has finally kicked us out of the Liberal party. I think he might have left it to others. He has always been free from personalities. He has done his best to keep out but there is no greater tragedy in life than the weakness of a good man and I am sorry he has succumbed.

"But he is only one out of many. There are die-hards on both sides. There are Liberal die-hards and there are Conservative die-hards, and they would all like to make me die hard too and soon.

"I see in one newspaper that rather supports the movement against the Government and claims that there should be a change, that what the country wants is something a little more dull and ordinary. There ought to be no difficulty in supplying from amongst my colleagues any number of suitable candidates that would fulfill that description.

If there is to be a change, believe me there is no man who would welcome it more than I would. I have had a long spell and a pretty hard one. I would welcome, I would love freedom. There are lots of things I want to say.

"Office is a great shackle. I never sought my present position. Mr. Bonar Law, Lord Balfour and Sir Edward Carson can tell you that I was willing to serve under any man of experience who was prepared to conduct the war efficiently and I said so, in any office however humble I gave up one of the most powerful positions in the Government in 1915 to take up an absolutely new and what was then a humble office because I thought that I could serve my country better.

"In 1916, if they had said to me: 'That is your job,' inside or outside, I would have done it because there were millions who were facing death for their country and it was not for a man to choose and pick his job.

"I never said: 'Make me Prime Minister'. On the contrary I begged Lord Balfour, Mr. Bonar Law or anybody to take that position. I begged Mr. Asquith to remain so long as the conditions were assured in his Premiership that I thought necessary efficiently to conduct the war.

ANXIOUS TO QUIT

"Three years ago I was anxious to go out. I felt that I could render better service to my country in a more independent position and I begged Mr. Bonar Law to take charge. He declined.

"At the beginning of this year I wrote to Mr. Chamberlain and suggested that it would be better that, as he was the leader of the party that commanded a majority in the House of Commons, that he should take it up and I promised every support so long as the policy of the Government was a policy of pacification and no reactionary legislation and that contract with Ireland was carried out. (Cheers). My colleagues, after consulting together, unanimously thought otherwise.

"I never sought the position, I never wished to retain it and I will serve my country in any capacity so long as God gives me strength. No man has had more loyal colleagues that I have, We worked for no mean end in a comradeship of hard toil, always for our common country.

I certainly would regret such severance with men who have treated me personally with such honourable fidelity, who have helped me along in politics that excited indignation even amongst certain quarters of their own supporters because they regarded it as in the interests of the country. But I would welcome freedom.

"It would be very interesting to watch others handling difficulties which they seem to think can be treated so easily. Have you ever been trying to disentangle a knot with somebody looking on? You seem to fumble, you seem to take a long time. They get very impatient and at last they say: 'Give it to me.' Then you look on and the tangle gets a little worse and the fumbling gets a little more pronounced. There is a little satisfaction of a human kind in looking on.

WINNING FRENCH LOVE

"I shall watch many things. I shall watch for instance to see how we are to forgive Germany all reparations and make France love us more than ever. I shall watch how we are to pay the United States of America what we owe her and forgive every other country everything they owe us—have a better army and navy and air force, have more houses for everybody, whilst at the same time rents are not being put up, strengthen your educational system and give more to the unemployed and yet make the taxation of this country lighter.

"I shall watch the men who believe in denominational education working with those who say that a State Church is essential to the recognition of religion. I shall watch men who believe that tariff reform is essential to national prosperity and those who believe that free trade is the only remedy working together.

It would be an interesting experiment to see others fight. That is one of the joys I have in store. I believe there is a resolution to be moved at a political Unionist' meeting. I think it would have been more honourable and courageous if it had been moved in November 1918. That is one party. On the other hand there is another party, led by Lord Gladstone and Sir Donald Maclean who say they will have nothing to do with or be associated with me.

"All the same, in spite of that, I have many friends. Outside I saw that smiling welcome of faces last night greeting me and I saw them on the Roadside today. I have many friends. Conservatives and Liberals, yes, and a multitude of those who are of neither of those parties.

"I throw myself on the people whose cause I have never betrayed during 32 years of strenuous public life. There are just, there are generous people and to those who have done their best to render them service—and I claim to have rendered them service, they will see fair play. Had I betrayed the people, the position which has been put forward in certain quarters would never have arisen.

WORLD STILL SUFFERS

"The world has not yet recovered from the deep hurt inflicted upon it by the war. That recovery will be slow and weary and there will be many setbacks. The supreme task of statesmanship at this hour is the pacification of the nations so that people shall have leisure to devote themselves to the placeful avocations of life and to fill up the depleted reservoirs from which we all draw.

"My course is a clear one. I will support with all my might any Government that devotes itself and lends its energy to that task with simplemindedness fearlessness and with resolution, provided that they do not embark upon measures which will inflict permanent injury upon the country whether these measures be reactionary or revolutionary.

"That does not mean to say that I pledge myself to support inefficiency, vacillation or infirmities in any Government or any party but any Government that has not pursued that course I will assist with all my might. That is my policy.

"The future is a perplexing one. The situation of our country, the situation of the world is too grave for any man to engage in any party or personal manoeuvers. One party—and I deplore it—has brought itself to the brink of destruction in spite of every warning by that kind of folly and the men who are engaging in the same kind of folly in either party will live to reap a harvest of disappointment and disillusionment.

PARTIES MUST MAKE GOOD

"Nations will never forgive parties that sacrifice national interests in a great emergency to party gain and whatever may be the temporary advantage of that maneuver. Maybe the time will come when even those who have listened to those counsels and who may recklessly and blindly follow that counsel will rebuke them because, instead of bringing national confidence, they have brought distrust to the party they love best.

"I shall play no personal or party game. I place national security and prosperity above the interests of anybody and, if in consequence of that position which I have taken, that position which I mean to abide by, if in consequence of that, I am driven alone into the wilderness, I shall always recall with pride that I have been enabled with the assistance of loyal colleagues in the dark hour of this nation's history to render it no mean service.

"I shall be proud of the fact that I have attempted things which even yet have not reached maturity or complete success and I shall be prouder than ever of the fact if this were the last day I held this high position—I should be prouder than ever of the fact that it was given me in the last days and weeks of my Premiership to invoke the might of this great Empire to protect from indescribable horror men, women and children by the hundred thousand, who were trusting to the plighted word of France, Italy and Britain as their shield and their defence and who are thanking God at this hour that Britain, Great Britain, has kept faith".

Leaves Himself Free To Several Courses

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 14.—The Premier still leaves himself free to take anyone of several very different courses, according to an editorial in the Observer, which says that the speech was unmistakeably an appeal to the Liberals. The friendly reference to Sir D. Maclean and the repudiation of any desire for personal dominance suggests strange possibilities.

England's Credit Better, Says Premier

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 14.—After his speech Mr. Lloyd George motored to Salford through cheering crowds where he was presented with the freedom of the borough. Acknowledging the honor, the Prime Minister said that the credit of the country was now far and away the best in Europe, Unemployment was due to the war and the country had made unprecedented provision to relieve distress though unemployment.

Mr. Lloyd George subsequently proceeded to Blackpool where he received similar honours. He dined with the Mayor and Corporation. The Prime Minister was everywhere the object of enthusiastic ovations by big crowds.

Diphtheria—How It May Be Avoided.

Diphtheria is usually contracted when the child has a cold. The cold prepares the child's system for the reception and development of the diphtheria germs. When there are cases of diphtheria in the neighborhood children that have colds should be kept at home and off the street until recovered. Give them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and they will not have to remain at home long. It also cleans out the culture beds, which form in a child's throat when it has a cold, and minimizes the risk of contracting infectious diseases.

Sold everywhere.

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

October 16th, 1922

Spot bar silver was unchanged forward and down 1/16d. in London on Saturday.

The New York price was unchanged and the London-New York cross rate improved to 444.

Our official quotations here today were unchanged from Saturday and our market, while opening steady, eased off during the day and became very weak in the afternoon. In the early part of the morning business in Sterling was done at 3s. 4⅜d. for November-December delivery, and in Gold Dollar at 74⅝. As, however, speculators were strong buyers at these rates the market quickly eased off and the official Sterling quotation as dropped to 3s. 3⅝d., the Gold Dollar rate to 73½, the Yen rate raised to 65½ and the other rates changed in proportion.

After the change in rates, the market still ruled weak and at the close there were no sellers of Sterling at better than 3s. 3⅛d. for any delivery and of Gold Dollars at 73½, with strong buyers at ⅛d. and ⅛ point respectively above these rates.

There were sellers of Yen at the close at 65½ and buyers at 65⅜ for October-November delivery.

There were sellers of Francs T.T. at 970 and buyers at 975. Banks in the afternoon were quoting 3s. 4¾d. for Sterling bills, 75½ for Gold Dollar bills and 1000 for Franc bills.

China again sold silver in London on Saturday and India bought.

The market is reported as closing steady.

New York also report their market as steady.

Confucius' Birthday

BY ITING T. WANG

(A Student in The University of Nanking.)

TODAY is the birthday of Confucius. All schools from the kindergartens to the colleges in China have holiday. This morning, before the sun rises from his rosy bed, officials and scholars will go to the temples of the Great Sage and offer sacrifices there. Old music will be played. Old musical instruments will be used. The sacrifices are to be very elaborate, and are offered with great solemnity. The ways and processes as to how to conduct the sacrifices are described in the book called the Holy Music Record."

Confucius was born in 551 B.C. in the province of Shantung. We need not go into the details of his life. While passing, we only mention that he lived an unpeaceful and struggling life; that he travelled much; and that he taught much. He had a following of three thousand. Of them seventy were favorites.

The teachings of Confucius have had a great influence on China and the Chinese. As a philosopher and moral teacher, Confucius was and is respected by all the people. His teachings are based on the precept "Virtuous rulers govern virtuous people," which can still be applied to China. We quote:

"Chi Kang once asked the Master about government. The Master said, 'to govern means to rectify. If you lead on the people with correctness, who dare not to be correct.' Chi Kang, distressed about the number of thieves inquired of Confucius how to do away with them. Confucius said, 'If you, sir, were not covetous, although you should reward them to do it, they would not steal.'"

These moral teachings ought to strike the cord of the whole officialdom in China today.

Since the Renaissance movement in China, Confucius' teachings have to some extent waned. The modern China contends that Confucius' teachings keep China conservative and backward in the stream of world progress. But Confucius and his teachings certainly have and will have a place in the pages of China's history. There is no other single character in the history of China whose teachings and sayings have moulded so much Chinese civilisation daily manifested in social, political and ethical life. His sayings recorded by his disciples in the book of Analects are quoted and repeated by scholars. His teachings as such have helped a great deal in making China stand as she does today, in spite of all troubles in the past both from within and from without the nation. Babylonia, Egypt, Persia and India, these old countries, each had their great teachers and sages. But these old countries perished long ago. That China still exists today, is due largely to the teachings of Confucius as a strong magnetic force holding China together for the past three thousand years. This is an historical fact which no one can deny.

What better tribute can the nation pay to her great Sage than to quote Tsu Kung, one of his favorite disciples:

"The talents and virtue of other men are hillocks and mounds. Chung Ni (Confucius) is the sun and moon which it is not possible to step over."

Shall the Chinese today say?

"Confucius, Confucius, how great is Confucius. Before Confucius, was there no Confucius. After Confucius, has there been no Confucius. Confucius, Confucius, how great is Confucius."

What Makes A Woman Successful In Business?

Here Are Half A Dozen Quick Answers—And You Could Have A Thousand More. Success Is Not Easy

A very intelligent young woman was asked—she having accomplished business success:

"What do you consider THE qualities that make up success, first in a woman employed to work for others, and in a woman owning her own business, managing her employes and responsible for the success of an enterprise?"

The young woman in question has worked as employed and as employer. Now she is resting, with a first-class husband.

Here are her answers, that will interest the millions of women who work and the other millions who would like to work and be independent if they knew how to get at it.

First, said she, you must know that there is a great difference between working for yourself and working for others.

There's as much difference between an employer and an employe as there is between an entire pie and one piece cut out of it.

The employe must have certain qualities, but need not necessarily have ALL of the qualities that make up a successful business woman working for herself.

In the woman working for another, for instance, these are the three essentials:

First, she must be PLEASANT in the literal meaning of the word pleasant, which is, "one that pleases another."

Second, she must be neat, agreeable to look at. All the better for her if, standing with three other women, the average intelligent customer walks up to her first rather than to the others.

If she pleases, the customer is pleased, and that is the foundation of commercial prosperity.

She must be quick. The only real property that we have, whether we are clerks or owners, is TIME

Any woman who wastes her time wastes her money, and that of her employer, just as certainly as though she were dropping money on the floor and not picking it up.

Third, she must have politeness, which is something more than pleasantness.

To be pleasant means not to offend.

But to be polite means more. It means to go out of your way to do what the other person wishes. It means consideration for the feelings of others. It means understanding the emotions, the weaknesses, the desires of others.

Given a pleasant disposition, quickness in action and politeness, and you have a good, competent clerk.

But for the woman who is to RUN a business, you need many things more.

She must be quick, without neglecting careful inspection of everything that she does with her quickness.

She must be able to THINK while she acts. That is not always easy.

She must combine knowledge of men, with reasonable suspicion of those she does not know, and yet not so much suspicion as to make herself the object of suspicion.

She must fight, of course, against one particular quality in men which makes them feel that it is always right to cheat a woman if they can.

Men have an idea that it is almost a shame to let women have money and keep it—and a good deal of their time is spent when they deal with business women in developing plans for relieving them of their money.

A woman employing others must make it her business to know and understand those that work under her. You'll often find a business man or a business woman thoroughly acquainted with the machinery of the business, the elevators, the sewing machines, the heating and lighting plant, entirely ignorant of the really IMPORTANT MACHINERY, which is the collection of human beings whose combined intelligence and good or bad qualities accomplish the work.

There is not a business in the world of any size that hasn't standing behind its counters, or sitting at its desks, men and women of great capacity GOING TO WASTE because of lack of understanding.

You would think little of a diamond merchant who did not know the stone with flaws and the pure white stone.

An employer who does not know the value of his working people is like a diamond merchant that can't tell the difference between a pure white, old mine stone and one with a touch of yellow.

The good employe is as valuable as the ruby from the crown of an Indian Rajah. Such an employe should be encouraged, developed, supplied with opportunity and brought forward with gratitude and appreciation—as a diamond polisher, when he gets the rough stone, works on it and makes it the thing that you see glistening on a woman's breast.

There is the employe with that faint yellow off-color touch that makes you know he'll never be the really fine gem of your collection. But he has his value; give him every chance, develop him as far as he will go. A wise diamond hunter doesn't throw away a stone because there is a bit of yellow in it.

Above all, the woman who employs others, whether they be men or women, must first of all KNOW HERSELF.

If you are bad-tempered, you must know it and try to control or at least hide it.

If at a certain hour of the day you get tired, your temper leaves you and you give short answers, and do not hear—go into your office and rest.

You must not let an imperfect machine be run in your business and interfere with it. If you see that you are becoming a poor machine—close up for repairs awhile and attend to yourself.

So spoke a wise, successful business woman.

There are a million opportunities for women—more than a million. Women are going to be more and more important in business. We wish that they could all stay at home and raise children and take care of their families. They will some day, when men are what they ought to be, and when for every good woman there will be supplied by civilisation a good man whom the woman can trust.

In the meanwhile, woman, to amount to something, must very often work for herself, and women can do it. It is not as difficult as they imagine. Very often at the head of a business—once you get there by close attention, politeness, hard work and intelligence—you find the position of boss easier than the position of employe.

He or she who works for himself or herself works with a mind that is always active, with a heart beating with hope and ambition.

And that is three-quarters of success.

Temper Tests Urged By Dean For Engaged Couples

Is there a means by which an engaged couple may test the quality and endurance of their affections before embarking on the stormy seas of matrimony?

The Dean of Manchester, Dr. J. G. McCormick, has brought this vital question again to the fore by warning the young people of his diocese against the entanglements of Cupid when he gets busy on the beach.

"Sweethearts must know each other at home as well as on holiday," says the dean. "Young people who become entangled in amorous attachments while on a holiday should not allow the entanglements to continue until they have seen each other at home."

Sir William Arbuthnot Lane, a distinguished surgeon, said:

"It has been my observation that couples who saw most of each other before marriage seem to manage their marital relations most successfully.

"Temper and physical attraction are certainly the two outstanding factors in married life, and in the beach affair it is physical attraction that is the impelling factor in matrimony. This factor, however, does not make for happiness in later life half so much as the temper of the parties concerned.

"Happiness in marriage is largely a matter of temper, and bad tempers subject to frequent volcanic outbursts are consistent with deep attachments and strong attractions.

"Temper tests might, of course, be employed to insure happiness before a marriage is made, but how could you expect two people under the spell of a strong physical attraction to apply temper tests? It would dispel the glamor of the relationship, and that would be fatal.

"Love even in these days of enlightenment is still blind, whether it is born at home or on the beach. Love finds its eyes only when the glamor is gone. What lovesick swain would be likely to believe in his betrothed's bad temper till he felt the bite of it—which is usually after marriage?

"Marriage is still a speculation, whether it results from a beach or a drawing room affair."

Answer To Man Who Wants A Horoscope

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

Eminent Astronomer and Authority On Subjects Of Scientific Interest

I received the other day a letter, the name and address of whose writer I withhold, for obvious reasons, which runs in part as follows:

"I wish to have a horoscope reading and enclose P. O. money order for one. I was born in ———, on December 2, 1886, at 1-2 p.m. What does a reading of the stars reveal for the future in matrimonial and business affairs? I have made the acquaintance of a girl born in ———, August 11, 1898. What do the stars reveal in regard to her, past and future?"

Accompanying the letter was a post office money order for two dollars. It would seem, then, that this must be the modern price of a horoscope, but if so horoscopes have gone low down, for there was a time when they were worth a king's ransom. The money order has been returned to its sender, not because it was too little, but because even a cent would have been too much.

What I have ever done or said that could induce anybody to suppose that I practise astrological divination, I do not know. I am somewhat chagrined, on the other hand, to meet with such evidence that all that I have written on this subject during many years has still left me open to the imputation of being an astrologer!

It is true that there was a time when astrology and astronomy were virtually synonymous terms, but to confuse them in this age and in a land of professedly universal education is a result of ignorance. It is no excuse to recall the fact that Kepler and Tycho Brahe sometimes cast horoscopes. They did not fully believe in them, and in their day astronomy had learned nothing about the heavenly bodies beyond their movements and positions in the sky, and it was mainly the curious and suggestive-looking combinations formed by the planets with one another and with the stars, during their ceaseless revolutions and occasional retrogradations, that brought to birth the astrological superstition.

Historically and psychologically astrology is very interesting. As an entertaining amusement it may be attractive to those who like to feel the thrill of apparent mystery. But scientifically, and as a practical means of reading character or forecasting events, it is misleading and worthless.

"What does a reading of the stars reveal for the future in matrimonial and business affairs?" asks the writer of the letter from which I have quoted.

I reply that such a "reading" reveals nothing whatever of the future of either matrimonial or business ventures—though I am not sure that I ought, in view of recent social developments, to make any distinction between matrimony and business.

There would seem to be much of the shrewd caution of the business mind in an effort to find out from babbling stars what a girl's past has been, and future is to be. Even if I were an astrologer, I hope my only reply to such a question would be: "Find out for yourself through your own shrewdness; the stars are spies only for empires."

For those who still can be fooled, or fool themselves, by horoscopes, it may be well to point out a single weakness. This is done in order that the inquirer is careful to give, as near as he can, the moment, as well as the day and year, of birth. This is done in order that the astrologer may fix accurately the "aspect" of the heavenly bodies at that instant. But this he cannot do, for the exact moment of birth is an indeterminate datum.

In the vast majority of cases it is not noted at all, and never with a thousandth part of the accuracy that would be demanded in an astronomical observation. On the other hand, the diurnal rotation of the earth causes a whole degree in only four minutes of time. Now, a degree is almost twice the breadth of the moon; but who knows the moment of his birth within four minutes of the instant that it occurred (if it be possible to fix any instant as that of the real "birth")? However, astrologers are not troubled, so at least they say, by these incongruities, though it is to be observed that they always want the exact time of birth, if it can be ascertained. But they will accept, if necessary, an uncertainty ranging over the whole twenty-four hours, when only the date and not the hour is known.

They will even undertake to discover inferentially both the day and hour of birth by working their system of divination backward! This they profess to do on the same principle by which the astronomer calculates backward to find the date of an ancient eclipse; but mark that the astronomer proceeds on carefully tested laws established by innumerable observations, in which the hundredth of a second is hardly regarded as a sufficiently minute margin of error, while the astrologer deals with so-called data whose limits of error are as wide apart as the gates of the day, and whose verification lies solely in the realm of the imagination. If horoscopes had the virtues ascribed to them they would be worth not two dollars, but thousands or millions of dollars apiece.

-:- Exercises That Gave Me Health -:-

BY MARGIE WHITTINGTON

Whatever else they may think, my friends' four photographs stretched admit that I am not weak or sickly looking. You would hardly pick me out of crowd as a likely candidate for a consumptive's home. In fact, my friends sometimes jokingly tell me that if I should get tired of my present work I could easily pick up a little money as a piano mover.

This I take it, is a more or less subtle tribute to my husky appearance. The truth is that while I am not large I feel husky and fit all the time, and I can say, without overstepping the bounds of precise statement, that I am as sound and as healthy as a new dollar.

But I wasn't always healthy. When I was growing up, in fact, my family used to wonder if I could possibly get through another Summer.

I was born in Montgomery, West Virginia. From my first year I was anaemic, thin and subject to frequent illness. I had pneumonia every year for ten years. This left me with weak lungs and a shattered physical system.

At fifteen I weighed only eighty-one pounds. I now weigh one hundred and twenty-two and could pass the most exacting physical test.

The difference was brought about by simple methods. I didn't go in for any cure-all system or for any mysterious sovereign remedy. At seventeen—we were living in Cincinnati then—I took up physical training. I worked out a system of exercises which I did in my bedroom. I got outdoors as much as possible. I developed a liking for swimming and cross-country walking. I stopped eating meat or rich pastries and I stopping drinking tea or coffee.

After two years of training I had brought about such a big change in my body that I was able to support myself as an artist's model. I posed for the late Frank Duveneck and many others. Later when I went to New York, I posed for Charles Dana Gibson and Mr. Gibson was kind enough to say that I had the most beautiful feet of all the women who had ever posed for him.

A little more than a year ago I was one among five hundred candidates applying for positions in the Ziegfeld Beauty Chorus. I was chosen. My figure won me a place.

When I remember how weak and puny I was as a little girl it seems miraculous that I should have ever developed to the point where I would be classed as a professional beauty. Yet the course I followed was simple enough. Any girl can do what I did. I had no money, no special apparatus, no high priced specialists advising me.

As I said before, I cut out the wrong foods, got plently of fresh air and went through a certain number of exercises, rain or shine, every day.

I am no expert student of anatomy, but I know that a woman should not do the type of exercises that will give her bunched or knotty muscles. Her system of exercising should be designed to build up vitality and then develop long muscle lines.

The exercises I shall describe in this article pull at every muscle in the body. Not one of them is particularly difficult and all may be mastered easily by a little practise. Let me urge you however, to go slow at first. Take all your movements deliberately and do not exercise for more than five minutes the first two or three days. After that you can work up to a daily period of about twenty minutes. Here are the exercises:

FIRST EXERCISE

Sit down in a chair or on a stool that's well braced on the floor or against a wall so it will not tip. Place both your hands between your legs and grasp the edge of the chair or stool. Then stiffen your knees.

After having taken this position raise your body from the chair with your arms. To do this you will lean forward and apply pressure on your hands.

This is a splendid exercise for your abdominal muscles and your arms.

SECOND EXERCISE

This is an exercise in making the muscles of the arms work against each other.

From a standing position raise your arms to the sides at an angle of about forty-five degrees, with palms to the front. Then bring both arms slowly to the front, imagining all the while that they are being opposed by heavy weights, and scoop the hands around in front of the body until they touch the hips.

THIRD EXERCISE

Lie flat on a long bench, so braced it will not tip. Place your hands over your shoulders and grasp the edge of the bench. Then raise your body until you have reached a vertical, upside-down position. This should be done slowly and the return to the original position should be done even more slowly. If you haven't strength enough to lower your body without letting it fall of its own weight, this exercise had better be done on a bed.

You can then do the exercise more quickly. That is, you can leap into the position and let yourself fall without danger of injury.

Recipes Of Value

HAM LOAF

Three cupfuls minced cooked ham, 1 small onion, 3 sprigs parsley, 2 eggs, ⅛ teaspoonful pepper, ¼ cupful cracker crumbs, 1 cupful milk, 1 tablespoonful prepared mustard, 2 hard-cooked eggs.

Put ham, onion and parsley through the food-chopper. And the eggs beaten, the cracker crumbs, pepper mustard and milk. Pack in a well greased bread pan; bake at 400 degrees Fahrenheit for forty minutes. Turn out on a platter and garnish with the hard cooked eggs sliced. If the ham used is very lean, put three or four small pieces of the fat, if available, on top of the loaf before baking. This loaf may also be sliced when cold.

HAM-YAM CROQUETTES

One and one-half cupfuls minced ham, 3 cupfuls mashed sweet potatoes, 1 teaspoonful salt, ½ teaspoonful pepper, 1 cupful milk, 3 tablespoonfuls butter, 4 tablespoonfuls flour, 1 egg, dry crumbs.

Put the boiled or fried ham through the food-chopper. Add the sweet potatoes, salt and pepper. Make a thick sauce by melting the butter, adding the flour and then the milk gradually and cooking until smooth and thick. Moisten the ham and potato mixture with the thick white sauce and form into croquettes. Roll in crumbs, dip in the egg which has been beaten slightly and thinned with two tablespoonfuls of cold water, and then in crumbs again. Fry until brown in deep fat heated to 390 degrees Fahrenheit. Drain on crumpled paper. Garnish with parsley and serve with creamed peas.

Children Cry for Fletcher's
CASTORIA
Fletcher's Castoria is particularly a preparation for Infants and Children made agreeable to the taste, acceptable to the stomach and pleasant in its action. It has been in use for over thirty years and has always been one of the most highly esteemed of all cathartic preparations. It has one great advantage over other preparations of its kind in that while it opens the organs readily and completely, it does not have a tendency to produce subsequent constipation so much to be dreaded.
It was only after years of research in the fields of herbs and roots for a combination of purely vegetable matter that would have all the virtues of Castor Oil, without its disagreeable, nauseating properties, especially when used for infants or children, that the formula used in Fletcher's Castoria was found, and which for over 30 years has proven its worth. Try it.
Save the Babies.
Infantry mortality is something frightful. We can hardly realise that of all the children born in ivilised countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one quarter die before they reach one year, thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one half before they are fifteen! We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save many of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestion, sickness, death. To avoid any possibility of giving your child opiates, or narcotics of any kind, keep Fletcher's Castoria in the house, and Save the Babies.

Drug Evil Increase Is Laid To Germans

Paris, August 20.—France is fighting the drug menace. The alarming increase in the illegal importation and sale of habit-forming drugs since the war, especially in Paris and the larger cities, has caused the Chamber of Deputies to pass a new law exiling drug vendors for at least five years.

The famous Paris Academy of Medicine does not believe that mere penal legislation is sufficient to solve the problem, and has organised a meeting of savants to discuss the subject in all its aspects and to insist on a series of new prohibitory laws designed effectively to stop the use of cocaine, "which is liable to undermine the vigor of the French people."

The burden of the blame rests on Germany, for most of the innocent looking white powder comes from across the Rhine, and many and devious are the paths it takes in crossing the frontier and until it reaches the addict. In the past the penalties have been slight for those caught selling "snow" and the profits so great (two and a quarter pounds costing 1,300 francs are retailed for 20,000) that its merchants were willing to take the risk, but still they resort to clever and often amusing methods of concealment to escape detection.

At first most of the cocaine crossed the frontier in soldiers' knapsacks when returning from the occupied area on leave. The soldiers were never examined by the customs officials, and as the poilus are paid only a few sous a day they could not refuse 100 francs or so for carrying a small package over the border. When this was finally discovered the cocaine rings hunted out a number of ingenious plans for getting their supplies from Germany. One group bought a large country house near the frontier in Alsace-Lorraine and went in for raising dogs. The dogs were trained to cross into Germany and to go to a certain house, where packages of cocaine were attached to them, and then return straight to their kennels. They passed right under the noses of the customs guards, who did not realise that the harmless looking dogs were carrying contraband in their collars.

CARRIER PIGEONS USED

Another method is to attach packages of cocaine to carrier pigeons, who fly from Germany back to the home of the drug dealer and then are transported across the border for another load. This was discovered when a pigeon fell exhausted and was taken to customs officials. The bird fell because the package it carried was too heavy for the long flight.

It is almost impossible, customs officials say, to stop these ingenious methods. Specific cases, when discovered, are attended to and the trade is stopped momentarily, but there is nothing to prevent its starting up again in some other place and to continue there until some accident causes discovery.

The methods of selling the powder in Paris, and in the principal centers of France, is even more ingenious. There are still a few men and women who offer the little packages openly, and they are only caught when they happen to offer some to a detective. Even then the chances were in their favor before the new law, for their profits were so great that a small fine or a week's imprisonment meant nothing to them. The more usual methods of sale are to offer the "initiates" a bracelet with a false watch filled with powder, various hollow medallions, small powder boxes with a double bottom, and even artificial flowers with a small sack of cocaine in the center. These are peddled in most of the bars in the night life district of Paris.

One clever seller had lost a leg in the war. His wooden leg was an intricate bureau with dozens of little drawers, each opening when an invisible button was pressed. He could put his hand in his pocket, touch a spring to open a drawer and draw out a package of the stuff. The police suspected him for a long time, but every time they searched him they found nothing. One day, while feeling of his wooden leg to see if it had any openings which would serve to hide the drug, a policeman accidentally touched a spring and a drawer filled with the small packages immediately opened.

There are others who sell the drug, accept money, and then say where the package is hidden. It may be under a flagstone of the sidewalk in front of a certain house, or behind a pile of bricks. Every day the merchant hides his wares in various places to prepare for the evening sales. It is strange to say these men rarely cheat the purchaser and the drug is always found where indicated. Another man employs an aid who carries the cocaine and follows him about fifty yards behind. The first man takes the money and makes a sign to the aid; then the addict slowly walks away and a package is slipped into his hand or pocket. As the man with the cocaine never offered any for sale, the police did not suspect him; and every time they searched the man who offered the drug, they could find none on him and were forced to release him.

SMALL QUANTITY SOLD

Very little of the powder on sale in Paris is pure. To make a larger profit, the dealers mix a little boric acid powder with the cocaine, which is a good thing for the health of the users. One day a woman, who had been sniffing a three-quarters mixture of boric acid unknowingly, bought some cocaine from an "honest" dealer who had not diluted his wares. She took her habitual dose and died in a hospital to which she was carried soon after. On the other hand, a young boy offered a "shot" to a detective, but in the police station they found his dope was pure boric acid. They could not hold him on a charge of selling cocaine, so they entered the charge of "defrauding the public." A Paris newspaper discussing this case said that such defrauding was a wonderful thing for the public and should be encouraged. It was jokingly suggested that the boy be given a medal.

There are some houses of ill repute in Paris where a business is made of selling nothing but cocaine. Only people who are known to the management are admitted, but occasionally a detective slips in and closes the place. The detectives cannot be everywhere every night, but the few arrests made only show how rapidly the evil is spreading. Since the war the number of persons caught in this traffic is increasing by leaps and bounds. They are: 1919, 59 arrests; 1920, 151; 1921, 212. Even so, not one in a thousand is caught. For this reason the police departments are considering special measures to put an end to the traffic, and if they are aided by the new laws which are proposed this great danger to the public health will be completely supressed.

The laws recommended by the Academy of Medicine are:

1. Increase the penalties. Five or ten years' imprisonment, without leniency, for any one found with cocaine, and fines proportionate with the profits in the trade.

2. Strict adherence and application of cocaine-selling to a law whereby the establishment where the offense occurred shall be closed permanently.

3. A special customs surveillance.

4. The creation of an international drug commission, which shall draw up laws on the subject and superintend their application.

5. A special police surveillance in France for drugs such as that now in existence for forgers.

EVILS RESULTING

In pointing out the evils resulting from the use of cocaine Dr. Courtois-Suffit said:

"The first sniffs of cocaine evidently give you a feeling of pleasure and a cerebral or physical stimulation which augments intellectual activity. The moderate use of the coca leaf by the Indians in South America has never seemed to harm them, and most of them have very long lives. Only those who abuse the drug become thin, yellow and suffer from intestinal obstruction. Therefore the abuse of cocaine is the danger which carries drug fiends, who unavoidably increase the dose progressively, to the madhouse or the grave. A cocaine user has hallucinations; the sensibility of his skin is either greatly enhanced or disappears entirely; he feels an itching as though he were covered with innumerable crawling vermin; his senses are affected so that he can no longer see, hear nor smell normally; his nerves shake to such an extent that he can no longer write, and it is difficult for him to talk; his intelligence weakens; his alimentary canal stops working; he loses appetite but cannot keep anything in his stomach; he grows thin rapidly and his eyes become caverns, while his cheekbones stand out; he suffers painful crises like a combined pleurisy and delirium. These are but the symptoms of emaciation and cachexy which precede death with syncope, amid horrible convulsions. Cocaine intoxication predisposes one to tuberculosis, a delirium of persecution, suicide and murder."

"Man and women with the cocaine habit," added Dr. Icard, "see little white, red or black points running over them, and they try to point them out to bystanders. They hear strange sounds, especially at night, and sit up in bed thinking some one is walking near them. Other times they are certain that they hear people talking near them, when nobody is around. One patient had the sensation of being eaten by rats, and he was always trying to chase them away. Another was certain that she had little animals between her skin and flesh. She was ever trying to crush them, and only succeeded in cutting her skin, so that we had to bandage her frequently.

"There are others who see fire all around them and jump out of the window; some see an imaginary enemy and shoot at the air; many suffer terribly during hallucinations and tear their clothes, roll on the ground, grind their teeth against a marble stand and mutilate themselves horribly."

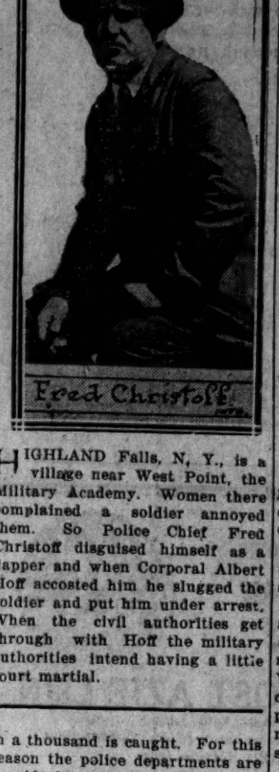
Flirted With Flapper, A Police Chief



HIGHLAND Falls, N. Y., is a village near West Point, the Military Academy. Women there complained a soldier annoyed them. So Police Chief Fred Christoff disguised himself as a flapper and when Corporal Albert Hoff accosted him he slugged the soldier and put him under arrest. When the civil authorities get through with Hoff the military authorities intend having a little court martial.

COTTON SUPPLY SHORTAGE FELT BY SPINNER

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 14.—A serious state of affairs in the cotton trade is reflected by the decision of the General Committee of the Master Cotton Spinners Federation to recommend the American section to continue to work short time (mills being stopped from Friday night to Tuesday morning every week) throughout November and to convene a meeting.

A meeting early in November will consider the situation then existing.

A member of the Federation stated that spinners of Egyptian and other yarns are feeling a pinch to an extent utterly unanticipated a few weeks ago.

Japan-China Trade Shows An Increase In Favor Of Japan

Sino-Japanese trade during September was heavily in favor of Japan, being a steep decline in China's exports. The balance of trade reached Y.14,549,000, against Y.7,705,000 during the same month last year.

Japan's export to China amounted to Y.22,868,000, against Y. 18,801,000 in the same month last year, an increase by Y.4,067,000, largely due to increased shipments to the central provinces of China. In shipments to Manchuria there was a slight decrease.

Imports from China amounted to Y.8,319,000 against Y.11.096,000 in September last year, a decrease of Y.2,777,000.

Japan Is Now Fifth In World Shipping

From third position in world shipping in 1918 Japan has fallen to fifth place, ranking almost equal with France, whose shipping was virtually destroyed during the war, according to a statement issued by the Kobe Shipping Exchange. A table is given which shows conditions in 1918 and those of the present and the results of the depression in Japan. It follows:

	1918	1922
Number of ship builders	Y.53,000,000	Y.21,000,000
Nominal captialisation	263,050,000	204,000,000
Number of factories	57,000,000	27,000,000
Number of building berths	157,000,000	94,000,000
Number of workmen employed	95,197,000	72,893,000
